GIRL SUES DOCTOR

DR. CONNELL ON WITNESS STAND

OMAHA, Neb., May 31.—Dr. Carl Connell, defendant in a $50,000 breach o fpromise suit brought by Miss Violet Johnston of New York City was the first witness called in the trial which opened in district court here today.

His testimony dealt mainly with his education, practice in New York City and his war record.

The first hint of affection alleged to have existed between the couple was given by Mrs. Mary Johnston, mother of the plaintiff.

"Once, about 1909, I saw Dr Connell put his arms about Violet," she testified.

In his opening argument, E S Brumbaugh, counsel for Miss Johnston said:

"It will be brought out in the testimony that Miss Johnston darned Dr Connel's hose and sewed the buttons on his clothes, that he expected this of her, and resented it when it was not done"

Brumbaugh described his client as "an innocent Irish girl who had never had a lover or a sweetheart before she met Dr. Connell"

He declared he would introduce evidence to show that the relations of the two was not that of a mistress, but of the betrothed

Brumbaugh declared testimony would show an engagement existed between Dr. Connell and Mrs Magnay, daughter of a wealthy New York man named Butler which was broken when Mrs. Magnay learned of the affair between the doctor and Miss Johnston.

FOREST FIRES FRIGHTEN NORTH

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 31.—Federal and state forestry officials combined with lumber companies and railroads today to fight menacing forest fires in the north woods.

Thousands of acres of timber and brush are reported afire in northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan

In southern Ontario the situation is even more menacing than on this side of the border, according to reports here.

Many new fires were reported on both sides of the Rainy river and in the lake Kabotogema district. More were discovered on the north shore of Lake Superior, adjacent to the Superior national forest.

The forestry officers here reported conditions more favorable for fighting the flames, and said the general situation was "improved." Heavy rains in the Red Lake district smouldered fires there.

There was no prospect of rain in the head of the lakes region, where undergrowth and timber is dry. Slack winds, however, enabled fire fighters to gain headway.

Lumber companies here reported heavy damage to standing timber and cut pulp wood and store houses along the Rainy river near International Falls. A steamer was reported burned near Fort Frances, Ont. Two barges loaded with pulp wood were reported burned on the Minnesota side.

Fires in Douglas county, Wisconsin, were reported controlled.

Commission men charge that elevator interests will control the market by the new rule

"The farmer is the 'fall guy,'" said one of the members of the board "He really has to pay a half cent tax on each bushel The average car of grain will cost about $7.50 extra because of the new rule."

MASK MORTARBOARD GIRLS

THIRTEEN NEW MEMBERS OF BLACK MASQUE NAMED.

High Aims Urged on Women of University Honorary Society Chosen on Ivy Day.

Members of Black Masque chapter of Mortarboard for next year who were masked by the thirteen members who have served this year Thursday afternoon on the city University of Nebraska campus are:

Margaret Hager, Alpha Chi Omega, Lincoln.
Nell Jean Holtz, Alpha Chi Omega, Boise, Id.
Helen Kummer, Gamma Phi Beta, Columbus
Ruth Miller, Kappa Alpha Theta, Omaha.
Edith Olds Palladian, Lincoln.
Lois Pederson Phi Mu, Lincoln
Emily Rees Pi Beta Phi, Omaha
Josephine Shramek, Chi Omega, David City
Ruth Small Alpha Phi Homer
Marie Snavely, Phi Mu, Lincoln
Grace Spacht, Sigma Kappa, Alliance
Gertrude Tomson, Phi Omega Pi, Lincoln.
Lila Wyman, Lincoln
Dr. Laura B. Pfeiffer of the history department of the university was elected as an honorary member.

Miss Sarah T. Muir gave the address which preceded the masking ceremony. She said in part:

"Some of the specific aims of Black Masque—we learn by a perusal of its history—are to show girls of the underclasses the way, 'to uphold worth traditions, to support worthy activities and to cooperate with the faculty and executives.'

"If these aims of Black Masque are put into deeds—and I have evidence that in many instances they are—then may not such an order be a power in making our university a fit center and symbol of the culture of the middle west?

"One may wonder how a society limited in membership to thirteen young women can leave much impress on a university so large as this has become. These thirteen young women who have carried the torch this year have ideals of what needs to be done and are seriously in earnest. Each also has the consciousness that there are twelve other seniors working with her. They were chosen from all the girls of this year's class—not for likeness of feathers or similarity of social tastes—but for their ability to stand for some cause. If they have been true to the traditions of the organization, they are now about to hand down to thirteen younger sisters, chosen because of their especial individuality and fitness, mantles which after a year's wearing they will soon lay aside.

"I earnestly bope that those girls scattered now somewhere over the green in this group today, soon to be chosen for membership in Black Masque, will add a long and notable page in the history of Mortarboard. The needs are real. Now that the city of Lincoln has established the community chest there will no longer be the calls for raising money for civic affairs. Black Masque has always led the way in assuming responsibility for raising money. The stadium is a certainty. Many of the tangible needs have been met. Others will appear with the year. What we need at all times in something less tangible—a student sentiment demanding honesty real scholarship, fairness and good fellowship. We look to Black Masque to furnish its share in the total good.

"We have in our university an outspoken prophet of the genius of the middle west. If this part of the world is to furnish the greatness of the future, then the University of Nebraska must send out the light. The responsibility rests on the board of regents, on the executives, on the faculty, on the alumni, on the students and on every group of students singled out for some especial need."

Members of Black Masque who have served during the past year are Valora Hullinger, president; Verna Bowden, Jeannette Cook, Adelheit Dettman, Belle Farman, Mildred Hullinger, Mary Bost, Florence Price, Florence Sherman, Margaret Stidworthy, Davida Van Glider, Dorothy Whelpley, Dorothy Williams, Mrs. J. F. Thompson, honorary.

Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity won the interfraternity sing held at the campus Thursday afternoon following the Black Masque ceremony.

PASS THE QUESTION BACK

Federal Government Asks Court to Settle Case of S. P.-C. P. Dissolution.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 31—The federal government today passed back to the courts the question of whether the supreme court order or the interstate commerce commission shall prevail in the case of the southern Pacific-Central Pacific dissolution.

In an argument before the federal court here, Solicitor James Beck declared that the government cannot cannot assent to the interstate commerce commission's action until the courts shall decide that it was the will of congress to supersede the Sherman anti trust law with the Esch Cummins act as the expression of governmental policy toward the rail roads

At the opening of the hearing today the Southern Pacific filed a petition asking that the circuit judges enter a decree carrying into effect the interstate commerce commission's order The existing union of the Southern Pacific and Central Pacific was ordered dissolved by the supreme court May 29, 1922 as a combination eliminating competition.

Young Professor.

President Hopkins of Dartmouth who recently declared that too many young men went to college—that higher education ought to be confined to higher types of mind—said at a reception.

"Here is an education story A father was pointing out the advantages of a university training.

"'There's nothing like education,' he said. 'Look at my young son. He's going to get all the degrees to be got you bet. Why, he's only nine, but he can answer any question you choose to ask him. Here he comes now. Ask him something.'

"The other man thought a moment, then he said to the boy.

"'My boy, your father tells me you are a great credit to your teachers How much is three times three?

"'Eight,' said the boy promptly.

"His father chuckled.

"'There! How's that?' he said. 'Right within one, the very first guess'"—Los Angeles Times.

BIG CAMPAIGN AGAINST REDS

Vigilantes Clear Known Communist Strongholds.

WORKERS RETURNING TO JOBS

French Soldiers Rumored on the Move.

Leaders Being Jailed and Radical Papers Seized—German Troops Reported Massing at Muentser.

DORTMUND, May 31.—German vigilantes are conducting a ruthless campaign against communist agitators in the Ruhr today as numbers of strikers return to work

Known "red" strongholds are being cleared, communist leaders are being jailed and radical papers and documents seized.

Settlements of differences between workers and industrialists, however, appears to be only a temporary arrangement. Wage increases approximating 50 per cent have been granted but the falling value of the mark may force new demands.

Arrangements are being made in Essen for return of the metal workers. The banks there have resumed paying workers The French have seized state mine No. 1 Bismarck.

PARIS, May 31.—German troops, including heavy artillery, cavalry and engineers, are massing at Muenster, according to a report from French sources at Crefeld to Le Journal.

German communists, as well as French observers in the occupied areas have reported movements of reich troops since Sunday. Muenster is a short distance outside the new zone established by the French army of occupation in the Ruhr.

The German government's explanation is that the troops are on their way to the usual summer maneuvers

RECORD CROWD AT BEACH

Twice as Many There as Last Memorial Day—Wednesday to Be Children's Freee Day.

The crowd at Capitol Beach Wednesday was double the size of the crowd on Memorial day a year ago, according to W. E. Sharp of the Capitol Beach company. It was a record breaker for May 30 crowds at the beach for the past eight years, he said. Fifty-six additional employes were hired for the day to direct the big crowd and find parking spaces for several hundred automobiles.

Lincoln high school students were entertained by the Capitol Beach company at the beach Monday. Twenty-five hundred free passes which included admission to the grounds, free rides and dances, were given to the students on that day. Mr. Sharp announced Friday that every Wednesday this summer would be made a free day for the children of Lincoln All children of the city who visit the grounds on Wednesdays will be admitted free and will be given free rides.

On June 20 and 21, the American Legion roundup will be held at the beach. The roundup will include all ex-service men of all wars, ladies' auxiliaries and the Red Cross and will be state wide. Special committees have been appointed and will take over Capitol Beach for the two days' roundup. Members of the committee are: Ernest Guenzel, commander; James Kinsinger, Harry Bald, Mason Wheeler and Luther Andrews

AMBULANCE DRIVER FINED

Oscar Peterson Pleads Guilty to Speeding on Emergency Run. Court Says No Excuse.

Oscar Peterson, ambulance driver employed by H. B. Brown, undertaker, was fined $20 and costs Thursday morning by Police Judge Chappell Mr Peterson pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding C. Petrus Peterson and C D Traphagen appeared against the defendant alleging that the ambulance was going at a rate of speed estimated by them to be around forty miles an hour

Judge Chappell says that an ambulance driver has no more authority to speed than any other motorist Assistant City Attorney Boehmer says that ambulance drivers are subject to prosecution for speeding as well as any one else. The two complaining witnesses told the court that the ambulance skidded ten feet when making a turn at the intersection at Eleventh and P streets at 9:35 p. m. Monday.

The defendant said that he was making an emergency run to the Burlington station to meet a train carrying a man who had been injured in Ashland. The complainants said they followed the fast machine to the station where it waited for fifteen minutes. The complaining witnesses believe that the ambulances in the city go unnecessarily fast even on the way to meet trains to get bodies. Mr. Traphagen intimated that one dead man is enough.

HON. JERRY WILL ACCEPT

RELUCTANTLY TAKES PLACE ON STATE PAY ROLL.

Thinks He Ought to Have More Than $150 Monthly Stipend—Governor Stops Shaking Plum Tree.

Jerry Howard of Omaha, known in legislative circles as the working girls' friend and advocate of a minimum wage, called on Governor Bryan, Thursday Mr Howard has been offered the inspectorship of the labor department at $150 a month. He demurs in regard to the smallness of the wage but is said to be ready to take the job. He was ostensibly an applicant for the head of the labor department, but this has gone to L. B. Frye of Lincoln.

Mrs. Jessie Alley, temporarily employed in the insurance bureau, was transferred temporarily to the labor department Two young women employed there quit work last week when Frank A. Kennedy was removed by Governor Bryan. Since then the department has been looked after by Lester L. Dunn, chief of the compensation bureau, but no other office help has been provided.

"Mrs. Alley takes the place of two girls who deserted the government," said Governor Bryan, "under the belief they were loyal to their former chief instead of owing some obligation to the state."

Petitions and cases under the compensation low are said to be piling up in the labor department, and the outlook for a jam in the department machinery is good unless the goveronr can find funds with which to pay both a secretary and an assistant. The $12,000 for salary and wage allowed by the legislature is said to be insufficient.

Governor Bryan kept away from the official plum tree Thursday. No new appointments were announced from his office. The governor was busy much of the day conferring with persons who have already been named by his as appointees. W. C. Knudson of Genoa, banker who is to be head of the state banking bureau in place of R. C. King, called on the governor in regard to his duties Mr. Knudson will take charge of his bureau June 1. If the department of trade and commerce lacks funds for a secretary and also a chief of the banking bureau, Mr. Knudson may eventually have charge of both the department and bureau, but the governor has not yet determined this matter.

Mr. King bought a lumber yard in University Place last November without making the purchase public. He will not take the management of the yard.

Governor Bryan called upon Attorney General Spillman Thursday for advice in regard to methods of providing pay for state appointees, especially the six code secretaries, who were given no appropriations for salaries by the recent legislature. The governor desires the attorney general to hlp him untangle this financial tangle The right of the governor to transfer funds of one department for the use of appointees in another department is one of the legal questions

SMITH TRIES THE DRY LAW

OPPONENTS AND SUPPORTERS APPEAR TO ARGUE MERITS.

New York Governor Calls Open Hearing to Sound Out Opinions Before He Acts on Legislative Repealer.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 31.—Wets and drys debated prohibition before a one man jury today when Governor Al Smith of New York held open court on the advisability of repealing the state enforcement law

Mrs. Ida Sammis Woodruff, former assembly women, opened the dry attack with an admonition to the governor that he would violate a campaign pledge if he signed the repealer passed by the state legislature.

"In answer to a questionnaire before the last election you told the League of Women Voters that you were for state co-operation in enforcement of prohibition," Mrs. Sammis Woodruff declared.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, urged the cause of the wets and denounced the Volstead act, in a letter presented to the governor

There is no doubt, Gompers said, "the riper judgment of the American people" on prohibition will force the next congress to pass "reasonable modification o fthe drastic and unjust provisions of the Volstead law"

Prohibition, Gompers said had increased drunkenness, use of narcotics, crime waves, deaths, blindness, insanity and "above all the corruption which has permeated almost every avenue of our federal state and local government, the flaunting and criticism of that law and the consequent greater disregard for all law and authority"

The ku klux klan, "an organization which lays claim to be censor of all morals and enforcement of all laws" would condemn Smith if he signed the repealer as he should Gompers added

Gompers said if Smith approved the repealer he would give impetus to the movement for modification of the Volstead law while if he vetoed it he would postpone for an indefinite period the modification o that law" He warned Smith that he would alienate support if he vetoed it and would gain none even from the people now asking for his veto.

"No single act could be so potential in securing an early reasonable modification of the Volstead enforcement as your giving your unqualified approval to the repeal," said Gompers, adding that he represented twenty million Americans in the families of organized labor, who rae on record as favoring the return of wholesome beer.

Pointing to the magnitude of the question, Mrs. Sammis Woodruff referred to the moment as "the supreme hour of your life, which may also very

BERTRAM CASE TO TRIAL

Trustee in Bankruptcy Seeks to Recover $1,000 Paid Farmers Bank of Staplehurst

Trial of the suit of Wilton Van Sickle against the Farmers State bank of Staplehurst was begun Thursday morning before a federal jury. Mr. Van Sickle, as trustee for Jacob R. Bertram, bankrupt, is seeking to recover $1,000 paid to the bank on a $3,000 note, on the ground that this payment constituted a preference, having been made the day before the bankruptcy petition was filed.

The trustee charges that the bank knew Mr. Bertram's business was in a critical state, and that it encouraged him to conduct sales at his store in August and November, 1920, from whose proceeds it was paid several thousand dollars; and that the balance on the $3,000 note in question had been filed as a claim against the estate. The defense contends that it did not know Mr. Bertram was insolvent when the $1,000 was paid; that he did business at the store up to the very day of his bankruptcy filing, which was January 6, 1921; and that it received only $1,000 from the proceeds of the November sale, the rest of the proceeds, and all those of the August sale, about $4,000 each time, going to wholesalers and other creditors. Field, Ricketts & Ricketts are counsel for Mr Van Sickle, and Stewart, Perry & Stewart for the bank.

STEWART MUST CANCEL NOTE

Glen and Bessie Smith of Kearney Given Verdict Against Farm Mortgage Company.

A note for $13,000 secured by a mortgage on a Buffalo county farm, and vendor's lien notes totaling $12,500, were ordered canceled Thursday by a decree handed down by Federal Judge Woodrough. Then otes were executed to the Stewart Farm Mortgage company by H. Glen Smith and his sister, Bessie Smith, of Kearney, and they brought suit against the company and W E Stewart, its president, and against the Edinburgh Irrigation company, the Stewart Land company, both headed by Mr. Stewart, O A Rose, agent of the mortgage company, the officers and directors of all the companies and J C. Nichols and the Commerce Trust company of Kansas City. The case was tried to the court Tuesday and the decree entered Thursday morning

The suit grew out of the sale of alleged worthless Texas land for $25,000 to the Smiths, who mortgaged the Nebraska farm they inherited from their father Their $13,000 note passed into possession of J C Nichols and the Commerce Trust company, who are ordered by the court to surrender it for cancellation The vendor's lien notes are declared fraudulent and void, and also ordered canceled. Supersedeas bond is fixed at $30,000

OFFICERS ACT AS RECEIVERS

ACCEPT BOOZE DELIVERY AND THEN PLAY HOST.

Moonshine Handlers Taught That It Is Well to Make Sure of Alcoholic Stand of Certain Patrons.

Two men registering as Frank Smith, 940 U street and J. L. Knapp, same address, were entertained by state officers Wednesday night. They made the mistake of taking liquid refreshments consisting of one gallon of alleged moonshine. After the entertainment, Smith was taken to Peter Johnstone's popular resort on North Tenth street. Knapp was taken to Mr. Hensel's joy killing establishment west of the court house.

Smith, according to State Sheriff Tom Carroll, once took a course at Warden Fenton's seminary and was later given tuition by the federal government. His wife, the officers say, is now seeking separation.

The state officers put on their dinner clothes Wednesday evening and waited for the two invited guests. The guests had neglected to make careful inquiry as to the standing of their prospective hosts. They knew where they were going but apparently were not aware of what would happen when they got there. It also is alleged thatthey made the more or less fatal blunder of asking their hosts to pay $12 for this gallon of so-called moonshine. This so enraged the hosts that they broke up the party, confiscated the jug and took the guests elsewhere for entertainment.

Members of the official reception committee expect also to confiscate one automobile in which their guests traveled. According to the state sheriff, charges of sale, transportation and possession—singly or combined—will be filed.

WHEAT MAKES FINE GROWTH

GOOD SHOWING DURING THE PAST TEN DAYS.

Warmer Weather and Much Rain Helps Vegetation to Make Up for Time Lost in Early Spring.

Crop reports reaching General Agent McGinnis of the Northwestern railroad from territory covered by that company's lines in the state indicate a marvelous improvement in conditions during the past week Winter wheat fields that had been given up as a total loss are beginning to show up well, the plants stooling where the ground is well covered and the promise of a fair yield is now held out where very little was expected ten days ago. Warmer weather and much rain has hurried along vegetation. With favorable weather from now on, much of the growing period lost because of dryness in the early spring the coolness of the temperature after the rains began to fall will be made.

Burlington weather reports for Thursday morning indicated very little, if any, rain in the state during the past twenty-four hours The weather bureau report, which covered a period of forty-eight hours indicated that a great deal of western and central Nebraska had been covered by rain These rain reports were made Grand Island, 74, Holdrege, 81 North Loup 61, Oakdale, 42; Culbertson, 29, O'Neill, 72 Fairbury, 59, Hartington 15; Columbus, 16

IVY DAY AT UNIVERSITY

Mildred Hullinger Enthroned on the City Campus.

VILLISCA GIRL IS HONORED

Honorary Societies Take Part in Colorful Ceremony.

Cecil Strimple of Omaha, Orator of the Day, Calls for Greater University Spirit and Service to Community.

Miss Mildred Hullinger of Villisca, Ia., was crowned May queen at the traditional Ivy day observance Thursday morning Miss Jeanette Cook of Ft Calhoun was her maid of honor

"The crowning of the queen of May is one of the most pleasing pictures of Ivy day," Cecil Strimple said in his Ivy day oration. "We hear the blare of trumpets, we see every eye bent to catch the first glimpse of the queen, we see her escorted to the throne with slow and stately tread We see her ascend the throne. We see her crowned and thus the greatest honor which lies within the power of university women has been bestowed as a tribute to womanhood and leadership."

At one end of "the triangle" thru the middle of which ran the white path leading to the throne the platform was erected. The Silver Serpents and Vikings decorated the platform A background of solid greenery was used and the throne before it was banked with snowballs. The front of the platform was a mass of flowers and greenery. Baskets of iris and yellow blossoms stood at each side of the stairway leading to the throne. The crowd overflowed the bleachers erected south of the triangle and formed a deep circle about the green spot which was roped off for the ceremonies.

The orchestra played several introductory numbers and then began the "Ivy Song" as the underclass girls marched in. They wore Grecian gowns in pastel shades and carried a garland of yellow and green. They were followed by senior girls, gowned all in white who sang the ivy song and carried a green and white garland.

> Ah, who shall bear the ivy vine,
> Who shall bear the ivy?
> Leaf and tendril intertwine,
> Who shall bear the ivy?

The solemn chant died away just before the members of Black Masque chapter of Mortarboard marched in wearing the black gowns, masks and mortarboards Miss Valora Hullinger, president of the organization, entered first. Twelve members followed, marching in twos, and Mrs. J. F. Thompson, honorary member this year, walked alone at the end of the procession.

The queen's attendants followed.

The two senior attendants, Lorraine McCreary, Delta Gamma and Elizabeth Montgomery, Gamma Phi Beta, came first wearing gowns of delicate blue, lace trimmed. They were followed by the junior attendants, Amy Martin, Delta Delta, Delta, and Helen Eiting, who were gowned in deep rose. The sophomore attendants, Pauline Gellatly, Alpha Omicron Pi and Helen Rhodes, Kappa Delta, wore pale yellow. Maurine Champ, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Helen Dowager, Delta Delta Delta, were dressed in green All the attendants wore crownless hats to match their gowns and carried baskets of spring flowers.

The maid of honor, Miss Jeanette Cook, wore a gown of pale green and lavendar chiffon with a large picture hat of lavendar taffeta and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. She was followed by the four little flower girls, Helene Wood, Claudine Burt, Sarah Ann Kauffman and Betty Ann Whitney, wearing sheer white frocks and carrying baskets of roses which they scattered as they went. The small crown bearer, Betty Jo Farquhar, carried the wreath of smilax and daisies on a white pillow. She wore a frock of white.

The May queen's gown was of white net, made simply and trimmed with tiny ruffles. Her veil of silk net fell from the shoulders and was carried by two tiny pages, Freddie Stott and Bobbie Henderson She carried a bouquet of white roses.

CLUB WEEK NEARING END

BOYS AND GIRLS WILL PUT ON STUNTS THURSDAY NIGHT.

Sight Seeing Tours and Class Work Closed, and 250 Youngsters Will Visit Omaha Livestock Exchange Friday.

The big swarm of boys and girls that have been seen on the streets during the past three days finished their sight-seeing tours of Lincoln Thursday with visits to Rudge & Guenzel's, Miller & Paine, and The Nebraska Farmer. The Nebraska Farmer showed the youngsters how their paper is printed by actually printing a few pages of their regular weekly edition while they were watching. This paper contained several pages of news about the club boys and girls themselves and copies were given them as souvenirs. Two ball games between four picked teams from the groups and the contests between groups finishes the day.

Club week visitors go to Omaha Friday to spend the day as guests of the Omaha Livestock Exchange and the Omaha chamber of commerce.

Class instruction was completed Thursday morning with more courses in news writing livestock work, who's who, millinery, cooking and community recreation.

Several local leaders are attending club week. Helen Shepardson, club girl from Ansley, found that Mrs. F. B. Young of Beaver City liked the judging of canned goods most and has appreciated the association with the boys and girls.

"Clothing judging has been the most help to me" says Miss Mary Etta White of Lexington. Mrs. Seth Piper of Polk has been helped most by the judging work also.

Alice Golliglee of Fremont attended club week last year and thinks this year's program is even more interesting. Marie Herney, club girl of Deshler, says in regard to the millinery class, "This is the first millinery class ever held at club week and we are interested in having the work repeated next year."

The 250 boys and girls have been divided into groups and each group will put on a stunt Thursday night illustrating some phase of their club work or something they have derived from their club lessons.

One group will show the different steps taken in organizing a club and another group will put on a "first regular meeting", in which they will distribute their record books and lessons, and get started into a real live club. Making plans for achievement day, the big day in the club year, will be the idea brought out by some of the girls. Some phases of "keep well" work will be brought out in clever dialogue by the girls in the "B" group. A group will put on a stunt to show what plans they have to make to carry out a tour of this kind, and the cooperation it requires. One bunch of little girls will put on the stunt of a meeting held just before state fair, and will decide what they want to take how they shall get it ready for exhibition, and all other details of showing at the fair.

A group of boys will show how to judge livestock, and another will endeavor to show that poultry work is the most interesting by putting on a poultry demonstration. Another will stage a stunt to show some of the phases of this very interesting part of the work.

A comparatively new project in club work is the farm accounts, and one group has taken advantage of this opportunity and will present to the audience a family discussing the farm accounts, and the advantage of keeping accounts on the farm. It is necessary to "sell" club work to some communities which do not at first see the value of it. One class of boys has chosen to show the others how they would go about it to put this before the people so they can see it as they do.

GUARDS FIFI STILLMAN

GRAND ANSE, Quebec.—The grandson of John D. Rockefeller guards the lodge of Anne Stillman here. He is Fowler McCormick, son of Harold F. McCormick, harvester king. Young McCormick is a voluntary guard and keeps away the curious minded who seek a glimpse of the woman who fought James Stillman, her New York banker husband, to a standstill. Stillman alleged that Fred Beauvais, an Indian guide, was the father of Guy Stillman. Courts held this was not so. Mrs. Stillman complains that Beauvais is annoying her. Young McCormick's presence here is explained by the fact that Mrs. Stillman and the McCormicks are very close friends.

BOY BADLY BEATEN TO BE SENT HOME

Six-Year-Old Child Punished by Brothers at Julian May Go to Parents at Wichita.

Mrs. Hornberger of the state bureau of child welfare will recommend to the district court of Nemaha county the return of six year old Joseph Weddle and his eight year old brother Herman to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Weddle of Wichita, Kas., as soon as their twenty-four year old brother, Jack Weddle, is tried on the charge of an assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

This recommendation will be made upon the advice of W. M. Woods, secretary of the Wichita league for social work. The eldest brother, who is married and has two children, lives at Julian. He is charged with beating the six year old boy and with causing him to be beaten by the eight year old boy. A piece of pine slab three feet long, two inches wide and half an inch thick is alleged to have been the instrument which covered the boy's body and limbs with bruises and cut a gash in his head and face. The child was temporarily in the care of the grown brother while their mother was sick at her home in Kansas. The children were first taken to Nebraska City and later Jack Weddle moved to Julian to manage a lumber yard. The youngest boy had formed acquaintances at Nebraska City and ran away to go there, and for this offense was punished, the eldest brother holding him on one occasion and stifling his cries while the eight year old boy wielded the club.

After the trial of Jack Weddle the district court will be asked to make some disposition of the two younger boys. Mrs. Hornberger was asked to ascertain if they have a fit home in Wichita. The welfare society of that city writes that it has helped the family and that the home is now in better condition than it has been for years. The older children are now old enough to work for themselves. The mother desires the two boys to come home. Mrs. Jack Weddle telephoned to the parents to take the children. The Wichita society recommends that they be returned home.

Action Follows Reports That Officials Were Investigating Market Transactions.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Officials of the Curb exchange this afternoon announced the suspension of the firm of Jones and Baker, the biggest dealer in the outside market.

The suspension follows reports which have been circulating in the financial district for the last few days that the officials of the curb market had been conducting a quiet investigation of market transactions.

WANTS SHARE OF PROPERTY

SUES SON-IN-LAW FOR PART OF DAUGHTER'S ESTATE.

Involves Important Legal Question of Whether Wives Must Sue Husbands to Establish Property Rights.

The supreme court in Nebraska is strongly urged, in a brief filed with it by Lambert & Hawby of Auburn not to line up with the majority of courts that hold that unless a wife sues her husband to establish individual property rights within four years after the cause of action accrues she loses any right to go to law thereafter about it.

The attorneys take the position that the duty of the courts is to discountenance marital disturbances and they deal at some length with the results that will follow if the supreme court says that Judge Raper was right when he held that the statute of limitations runs on causes of action between husband and wife. They say that nobody likes to be sued, and that if a wife or a husband must go to law to establish a right she or he is likely to cause a bitterness that will end in the divorce court.

"It is asking too much," they say, "of a confiding and sensitive wife that in order to protect her rights in her property she must sue to save them. This is uneemly and abhorrent. Public policy demands a condition of implicit confidence between parties to the marital relation, and to be forced to sue to protect her rights will destroy that condition."

The suit is one where Barbara E. Watkins sues her son-in-law, for her share of her daughter's estate. The son-in-law is Thomas J. Adamson. His wife had inherited $2,200 from her father, and had given this to her husband under an agreement that it was to be part of her estate. He gave her a note for it, and the mother-in-law says that after his wife died he destroyed the note, while he says that his wife gave it to him on her death bed and that it was destroyed at that time.

The suit also runs against the administrator of the wife's estate Mrs. Watkins averring that the administrator told her at first that Adamson admitted the debt and agreed to pay it and then refused to bring suit and sides with the husband.

FORD IS BEHIND THE BID

Silver Creek Offer for Government Ships Thought to Be That of Manufacturer.

SILVER CREEK, N. Y., May 31.—Henry Ford, flivver magnate, is behind the billion dollar bid for government ships constructed during the war, according to belief of townspeople expressed here today.

John W. Slack of this city, who made the bid, really represents Ford, it is suspected.

Suspicions to this effect were first aroused when it became known that Ford visited this city two weeks ago. Altho Slack refuses to admit he was in consultation with Ford, prominent townspeople believe he was.

DETROIT, May 31.—Doubt was expressed here today at the Ford offices that Henry Ford was in any way interested in the purchase of the government merchant marine fleet or in any way involved in the billion dollar bid made by John W. Slack of Silver Creek, N. Y.

While Ford could not be reached this morning, last week he definitely stated that he was not interested in bidding on the fleet

PARTY WILL WASH HANDS

NOT TO HOLD SELF RESPONSIBLE FOR SMITH.

National Democratic Organization to Endeavor to Prevent Break Over Veto or Signing of Reepaler.

By Lawrence Martin.

WASHINGTON May 31—The democratic national organization will, like Pilate, wash its hands and declare itself innocent of any part in the death of the state prohibition enforcement in New York if Governor Smith signs the repealer of the state code.

Standing aloof from both wet and dry factions in the party, the national organization will seek to prevent a break over Smith's action, whateevr he does.

Let every state decide for itself about prohibition enforcement as a state issue; let all men obey the law as it stands, so long as it stands, as a national proposition. That is the position national democratic leaders intend to take, in order to avoid if they can, making the question an issue within their own party in 1924.

No one here believes they can avoid the issue. If Smith sides with the wets, he and Governor Silzer of New Jersey will at once be hailed as the leaders of the "wet democrats" who will go to the democratic convention demanding the party take a position nationally on the issue either by advocating amendment of the Volstead law to permit beer and light wines, or by stating taht each state ought to be permitted to decide for itself whether to cooperate with the federal government in enforcing the Volstead law.

KITCHIN HAS PASSED AWAY

DEMOCRATIC LEADER SUCCUMBS TO A LONG ILLNESS.

Had Worked Himself Up Thru Democratic Ranks in House to Chairmanship of Ways and Means Committee.

WILSON, N. C., May 31. — Claude Kitchin, noted democratic leader, died in the hospital here early today.

Kitchin, democratic floor leader in the house in the last congress, had been ill for a long time of stomach trouble.

He had a relapse several days ago, following what appeared to be an improvement in his condition.

The end came at 6:10 a. m. today.

Kitchin's death removes one of the most picturesque and influential figures in the south.

He was born near Scotland Neck, Halifax county, North Carolina, March 24, 1869, the son of William H. Kitchin, a member of the forty-sixth congress, and Maria F. (Parlington) Kitchin. He graduated from Wake Forest college in June, 1888, with the degree of bachelor of laws, and in the same year married Miss Kate Mills. He was admitted to the North Carolina bar in September, 1890.

Kitchin never held public office before his election to the fifty-seventh congress as a democrat from the Second North Carolina district in November, 1900, but once having donned the harness he never left it. He was successfully re-elected to every congress after the fifty-seventh, and at the time of his death was member-elect of the sixty-eighth congress, the twelfth consecutive congress his constituents returned him, to and the twelfth house member in length of service, with twenty-two years.

Kitchin worked himself up thru the democratic ranks in the house to the chairmanship of the powerful ways and means committee. When Champ Clark was speaker during the sixty-fourth and sixty-fifth congress Kitchin became majority floor leader. He relinquished the position of democratic leader to Clark when the republicans regained control of the house in the sixty-sixth congress. Upon Clark's death, Kitchin succeeded to the minority floro leadership, which be nominally held at the time of his death, tho during his prolonged illness the function was performed by Representative Carrett of Tennessee.

Kitchin's illness dates back to war days, when he, like all other congressional leaders, was under a tremendous strain of labor. Kitchin worked day and night and as a result developed nervous indigestion, which became a more serious form of stomach trouble.

A year ago Kitchin was virtually forced to retire.

He had been in the hospital for several weeks and it became apparent soon after his admission to the institution that his vitality was so low that his death was only a matter of time.

Two days ago Kitchin's physicians gave up all hope.

His family was at the bedside when Kitchin died.

Funeral arrangements have not made.

CALVES SHOW BIG PROFIT

Feeding Experiment at Agricultural College Develops Some Unexpected Results.

That calves make almost twice as economical use of their feed as mature steers was the most outstanding result of the University of Nebraska experiment station's third annual 200-day feeding test on steers of various ages. The experiment reached the final stage when they were sold May 23 on the Omaha market. They scored top prices.

To make the same gain that the three-year-olds make on 100 pounds of corn, the calves required only 59 pounds of corn. Putting it another way, the big steers consumed an average of 80 bushels of corn per head and put on 540 pounds each while the calves gained nearly as much, 513 pounds, and did it on only 46 bushels of corn. These figures are on the basis of final weights at Lincoln. On the basis of weights at market, the calves made an even more startling showing on account of the fact that their shrink per head en route was smaller than that of the big cattle. These figures give the calves the largest net gain of all, 489 pounds as against 481 pounds on the yearlings, 459 pounds on the two-year-olds, and 472 pounds on the three's.

Selling prices and average weights for the various lots sold May 23 were as follows:

Number	Weight	Price
1 (3-year-olds)	1579	$10.40
2 (2-year-olds)	1375	10.50
3 (yearlings)	1161	10.40
4 (calves)	879	10.75

Another feature of interest to practical feeders is profit per head. This figured out $7.34 on the three-year-olds, $12.11 on the two-year-olds, $11.44 on the yearlings, and $16.73 on the calves.

MINNESOTA DRIVE STARTS

Fourteen Men Aspiring to Fill the Place of the Late Senator Nelson.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 31.—Fourteen men seeking the senatorial seat made vacant by the death of Knute Nelson, today began vigorous campaigns.

The republican primary fight is largely between Gov. J. A. O. Preus and Judge Oscar Hallam. Both campaigns are well under way. Congressman Sydney Anderson is campaigning in his district and Congressman T. D. Schall has been active in Minneapolis. Former Congressman Halver Steenerson, past seventy, will cover his district next week. Former Governor J. A. A. Burnquist plans a mail campaign. Victor Power of Hibbing opened campaign headquarters in St. Paul. Ernest Lundeen and John J. Martin were busy in Minneapolis.

The trio of farmer-labor candidates, Magnus Johnson, Charles A. Lindbergh and L. A. Fritsche, arranged a number of meetings out in the country districts and on many occasions will appear on the same platform.

The democrats, James A. Carley and Francis L. Cary, will cover the state thoroly.

RAILROADS MAKING PLANS

Concentrate on Task of Getting 300,000 Shriners to Washington and Home Again.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Practically the entire transportation system of the United States was concentrating today on one task—getting the Shriners to "Mecca" in time.

Handling of the traffic for the Shrine convention, which will begin here next week is the biggest passenger movement in the history of American railroading, railroad officials here said today. They predicted it would be carried out without a hitch.

About 300,000 people will be moved to Washington and returned to their homes within a three week period.

Practically every open space in the city has been converted into a "Shrine parking place" for the accommodation of the 45,000 automobiles expected. Hundreds of these have already arrived.

DOUG FAIRBANKS, JR., WILL MAKE HIS FIRST PICTURE AT SALARY OF $1,000 A WEEK

Doug. Jr., and his mother, formerly Miss Beth Sully, daughter of Dan Sully "The Cotton King," as they sign $1,000 a week movie contract.

LOS ANGELES—Filmdom is awaiting with interest the arrival of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who is expected here soon to make his first picture. His pay will be $1,000 a week under the terms of the contract which his mother let him sign in New York recently. If young Doug proves a "flop," the Famous Players-Lasky company can cancel the contract. If he goes over, he will make five more pictures. The boy is thirteen years old, and is the first film star's son to get his name in electric lights.

STATE TREASURER A VICTIM OF THIEVES

First Robbed of New Automobile Parked on Capitol Grounds and Later Misses Extra Tire.

State Treasurer Charles D. Robinson was robbed of a new car two months ago when the vehicle was parked within 150 feet of his office window, on the capitol grounds, in plain sight of his office. The car was insured for almost its cost price, $850, and when he settled with the insurance company he bought a new car. This car was parked in the same place where the original theft occurred, in full view of people in the state house and many workmen on the new capitol, but nevertheles sthe state treasurere now reports that a theif helped himself to an extra tire attached to the rear of the new car. The theft occurred Tuesday. It was covered by insurance and the treasurer has already selected a tire and rim to replace the property stolen.

FOREST FIRES SERIOUS

Federal Forestry Agents Warn Government of Increasing Destruction.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Increasing seriousness of the forest fire situation in Michigan and Minnesota was reported to the federal forestry service by its agents today.

A telegram from John McClaren, head of the service's field workers in the middlewest, said the situation in northeastern Minnesota, in the Superior national forest, "is still very serious." All available forest service men, headed by McClaren, are fighting the fire, with the aid of 100 citizens.

Settlements are menaced by the flames.

In addition a new fire has broken out in northern Michigan. It has already swept 1,600 acres and is spreading.

RAIL HEADS ATTACK PLAN

DECLARE LAFOLLETTE'S CONFERENCE STRIKES AT THEM.

Charge He Is Seeking to Make Private Management Impossible and Government Ownership Unavoidable.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Charges that Senator Robert M. LaFollette's national "progressive" conference on railway valuation is seeking to make private management impossible and government ownership unavoidable are made in a statement here today by railway presidents comprising the public relations committee of western lines.

Opponents of the alleged plan of the roads to obtain increased valuation were referred to as "radicals." The statement was signed by the following presidents: J. E. Gorman, the Rock Island; W. H. Finley, Northwestern; H. E. Byram, Milwaukee road, C. H. Markham, Illinois Central, Hale Holden, Burlington, and Samuel M. Felton, Chicago Great Western.

"The proponents of government ownership are planning to set a low valuation and a consequent drastic reduction of the net return for the plain purpose of making it impossible for the arilways under private management to raise new capital, or enlarge the capacity of the properties and satisfactorily handle the country's business," the statement said.

The rail heads denied that the roads are prepared to demand a $10,000,000,000 valuation increase before the interstate commerce commission as charged by LaFollette.

ELDERLY MAN STEALS CAR

George Clouse Not Fast Enough to Catch Bearded Stranger as He Drives Away.

George Clouse, 1901 Y, reported to police early Thursday that his auto was stolen at 8 a. m. by an elderly man. The machine was parked at Eleventh and P streets while Mr. Clouse went into the Saratoga billiard parlors. On glancing out of a window he saw an elderly man wearing a beard drive away with the auto. He ran from the building but the alleged thief had made his getaway before Mr. Clouse could obtain another auto for a pursuit. The police department was notified and officers are on the lookout for the auto.

TO EXHUME WOMAN'S BODY

Will Investigate Mrs. Kolar's Corpse to Determine If Cancer or Starvation Caused Death.

CHICAGO, May 31.—The body of Mrs. Anna Kolar woh died after treatment at the Lombard sanitarium, near here, was ordered exhumed today to determine whether death was due to cancer, as shown in the death certificate, or to starvation, as claimed by relatives.

The order followed an investigation by John W. Fellmer of the state department of examination and registration, of reports of long fasting by patients in the sanitarium, and of the use of a "cold water cure". It was claimed the icy water was turned on the patients thru a needle point nozzle, following "sun baths" in the nude, Fellmer asserted.

Mrs. Kolar's body was ordered dug up as the result of a conference between Oscar Wolff coroner of Cook county and Coroner Kopf of Du Page county where the sanitarium is located.

Dr. George T. Hoffenmeyer is head of the institution. He is a member of the Chicago medical society and a fellow in the American Medical association.

AMAZON BAND MAKE A RAID

Yougn Girls Rout Band of Boys and Win Strategic Victory in Park Battle.

A band of thirty girls ranging in age from eight to fourteen living in southwest Lincoln, won a military victory Wednesday evening over a group of southwest Lincoln boys who had been throwing "cheeses" at them. The boys were ingloriously chased from the F street park to Second street, and it was rumored there was one male casualty.

A visitor walking in the park just after dark Wednesday, carrying a switch, was suddenly assailed by a group of a dozen or more girls, who demanded the stick. Upon being assured that the weapon was to be used for purely punitive purposes, the stranger surrendered his stick. He was the ninformed that boys on the west side of the park were throwing "cheeses" at some of the girls. The young amazons assured the stranger that they did not relish this article of diet applied externally.

The girls went south of the F street park and recruited reinforcements, and soon the hillside was more or less white with warriors, all armed with clubs. The army moved then toward the west side of the park, but before the visitor could reach the place, he heard a few muffled yelps, a wail or so, and beheld a strategic retreat, with the girls pursuing, a multitude of cheese hurlers. Someone threatened to call for the police, and suddenly the amazon army disappeared, leaving only one small group of girls, one of the saying:

"I looked up and there was boys all around me. I grabbed one of them and knocked him down and kicked him all over the sidewalk!"

TO CURE HEART DISEASE

Cardioscope Invention Permits Inspection of Inside of Beating Heart.

CHICAGO, May 31.—A method for cure of common heart diseases thru use of a newly invented surgical instrument known as the cardioscope was announced here today at the annual meeting of the American association for Thoracic Surgery.

The instrument, invented by Dr. Duff S. Allen of George Washington University, will make possible heretofore impossible operations, it was said, and permits inspection of the inside of a beating heart.

Dr. Howard Lilienthal, prominent New York surgeon, declared the cardioscope was perfected to such a degree it could be used with success.

Its chief function, Dr. Lilienthal said, is in case of leakage of the heart.

SAYS TASICH SHOULD STAY

JUDGE CAVE MAN WHO SHOT WOMAN THREE YEARS.

Attorney General Tells Supreme Court That That Is Not Too Much for Nervous Man From Omaha.

Attorney Geeral Spillman advised the supreme court, in a brief filed Thursday with that tribunal, that he thinks John Tasich, convicted in Douglas county of shooting with intent to do great bodily injury, ought to serve the three years that a Douglas county judge gave him. Tasich has a contrary opinion, and has submitted an appeal to the supreme court.

The victim of Tasich's aim was Mrs. Stella Denil of South Omaha. She was hit on the arm, hip, knee and foot by bullets that she says Tasich fired at her.

Bootlegging cuts some sort of a lgure in the case. The woman har purchased some liquor from a friend of Tasich, and had that day taken the stuff to the federal building and turned it over to the law enforcement officers to use in a prosecution.

On the evening of the shooting Mrs. Denil and a friend took a walk in search of a dressmaker, and their stroll carried them into the neighborhood of the man from she had bought the liquor. Tasic, it was testified to, had been hanging around there for several hours, with his brother, and the theory of the state was that he had been tipped off to the woman's activities and had armed himself to discourage them. He did not shoot to kill, as no bullet was aimed at a vital part.

One of the officers testified that the morning after the shooting he followed a trail of blood ten blocks to a hospital and there found Tasich suffering from a bullet wound in the arm that he said had been inflicted by Mrs. Denil. He had not complained to the police, and did not intend to do so. He was extremely reticent about the whole affair, and on the witness stand denied he had said what the officers had sworn to.

The attorney general says that there is no force to the technical objections raised; that it is fairly safe to assume that the jury was fully informed as to the facts when it found him guilty, and that the defendant's plea that three years is excessive is baseless in view of the damage he inflicted on the woman and the fact that he did the shooting in a public street.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: I hope that you will pardon my intrusion, but my troubles are so real and my case is so desperate that I am afraid that I shall not be able to make you fully understand me.

Oh! I am so desperately in love with Jack Twinkleyes and you know I believe that he reciprocates my love for just t'other day he told Mamma that he likes to tease me and you see, when a boy likes to tease a girl that is positive proof that he loves her.

This then is my problem: Mamma says that both Jack and I are too young to think of taking on the responsibilities of domestic life; besides that Jack is nearly double my age; I am thirteen months old and Jack is now nearly two years old. Really do you think that this difference in our ages might have a disastrous influence on our future happiness? My friends to whom I have confided my problem are fearful of the results; but you know, I just think that it would be real romantic. I had rather be an old man's darling than a young man's slave any time.

T'other day Mamma said that she thinks I am old enough to wean. I didn't at first like the idea at all, but after thinking it over I just got a notion that it would be real nice to sit up to the table like my big sister and eat just like grownups do. My big sister is four years old and I tell you what, she thinks she's some pumpkin.

Say, that reminds me, t'other day I went down town with Mamma and I think I must have seen about a hundred girls with black and red crosses and stripes all over their faces, I didn't know what it was all about but I felt so chagrinned and embarrassed I just didn't know what to do. I did so want to have my face painted; you know we girls want to do any thing that we see other fool girls do, just to be in style. I asked Mamma what it was for and she said that she didn't know but she thought they must have escaped from the state hospital and that the guards would probably round them up and get them back in again. I wonder if that's a fact.

You know, I never had any drug store complexion. Mamma says I don't need it, but you see, my big sister uses rouge and powder and lipsticks and eybrow pencils and I don't know what all and I haven't any of this kind of stuff and I don't think it is fair; she is only three years older than I am.

Say, t'other day I saw aMry Giggles making goo-goo eyes at Jack Twinkleyes and it made me so jealous that I just hate her. I am afraid that she is trying to get him away from me and you know boys are so fickle I'm just afraid maybe she will. Oh! my, what can I do to keep him? boo-hoo!

Say, t'other day I saw Mary Giggles an airplane. I have had only one ride in the air and I can't remember just how it seemed. There must have been a peculiar sensation about it. Well it wasn't exactly in an airplane either. You see they say that the stork brot me, but my recollection of it is so faint that I would like to go through the experience again. Don't you think that maybe I could?

Well, I must ring off or you will surely consign this to the W. B. that's its destination anyway, but I would so like to get your answer to my woeful tale.—All Dimples.

A. I 'spect you and Jack had better put such serious thoughts out of your infant heads, altho I can readily see how you might be attracted to each other. However, if I were you I'd hurry up and learn to walk (or can you now?) and then it will be lots more fun playing with Twinkleyes.

I'm 'fraid you'll never get another chance to sail thru the air with the stork, but if you save your pennies and don't spend them foolishly for gum and candy, maybe you can afford a ride in some of the planes which sail about over Lincoln.

Come back again sometime and tell us of your happy life.

Dear Mary Gordon: I wonder if the contributors to this column fully comprehend the definition of the compound word "old fashioned" as used by we men folks?

Brutess, a chic little thing who undertook to upbraid me the other evening (May 8), seems of the opinion that a person is as he or she dresses. She, and others of her group, has the idea that hoop skirts, sunbonnets, and screw curls, placed on one of our modern flappers, would instantly change her into a maiden of the '50's. That is absurd! Worse, it is positively stupid.

When men refer to a woman as old fashioned they are gauging her by her morals, her common sense, her intelligence, and not by the clothes she wears or the brand of powder she dusts over her face. Old fashion is a condition of the mind and heart, not the wardrobe. In 1850 men sought the old fashion girl just as men do today, and in 1750 the same search was in progress.

A girl can be old fashioned in morals (meaning that she can conduct herself along common sense lines) and still be modern with the aid of marcel waves and powder puffs. I do not say that all women prior to the twentieth century were above reproach. We know that it would be absurd to say that. Neither do I say that all women of this day and time are immoral. Only the blankest fool would entertain such a rash thought. But I do say that women feared public opinion a little more then than they do now, and this fear constrained them to act judiciously. We know without argument that the morals of both sex are lower now than fifty years ago. We know that allurements have increased, giving the weaker mortals added opportunities to indulge in their weaknesses. We also know that murders, divorces, elopements, broken homes, and deserted children are common with us today, whereas such things were rare fifty years ago. This is why men long for the girl with old fashion ideas. Old fashion ideas build homes and raise babies and give the nation a background. When people learn to judge a person by his or her heart and not by outward appearances a lot of rank nonsense and silly spoofing thru columns of this nature will be dispensed with. A dress never made a woman or changed her characteristics. You can put percale on a princess but that is no reason why she should make a capable kitchen maid. The same fits Brutess' argument. You can put hoop skirts and screw curls on a campus cake eater but that wouldn't make her old fashionin ideas and the like. Get away from the clothes idea, Brutess. Try to study human nature thru the heart. God made the heart. Any good ladies' tailor can bang up a nifty wardrobe. If you wish to know a person thoroly look beyond his or her wearing apparel. You know, a boy can don the guise of a girl but that wouldn't change his sex or ideas. Come to bat again, and for koodness sakes, don't be absurd.

Now as for B. K. X., whose brain tornado appeared in the May 7 issue, I'll condescend to say this much. He made a light reference to my opinions, saying that Schopenhauer antedated my remarks and said them much better. What a bright and brilliant discovery! Until I perused Professor B. K. X.'s illuminating treatise I had labored under the silken delusion, apparently, that in my little brain lurked the hoary wisdom of the ages. I fancied, until his ill-fated remark, that Vergil, Homer, Plato, Chaplin, Darwin, Freud, Coue, Rudyard Kipling, Mack Sennet, Sidney Smith, and Abe Martin were rank amateurs in thought compared with me. I was on the verge of applying for a position on the editorial staff of the Literary Digest or the Omaha Daily News at the time friend B. announced his startling discovery, but as he had made it public, all that I can do is to crawl back in my den and dream of the glories that would have been mine.

As for B. K. X's. line of alleged thought, I am inclined to the notion that the only kind of girls he has ever attempted to "love up" were girls so easily fooled into believing anything that a half-wit could have impressed them. He chorties in glee because I am not bad. Certainly I am not bad. I have never said I was a bad 'un. If he's got that impression of me from reading my letters he must have read my letters in the same backward way he reads feminine nature. In my wildest outburst I never made any such remark as he makes. Any man who says that all girls are as he describes should be placed on a desert island where even the vegetation would be of the male persausion. Of course some of them are silly. So are some of we. But it is absurd to employ the word "all" in referring to either sex. If he thinks that any girl will fall for his loving up, I know two of them who wouldn't. They'd wallop him with a brick or something if he attempted it unwarranted. One of them is the one I think a heck of a lot of and the other one is my sis.

Some day I will write again and bawl out a few more of the bunch who seems to be down on me without knowing exactly why.—Brute without reservatinos.

P. S.: I'll wager a slab of chocolate cake with icing intact that this cookie-pusher B. K. X., wrote his maiden letter to this column just to see what sort of answer you'd tack to it, Mary Gordon. He fancied you'd waste a deal of your precious time thinking up a hot retort 400 words in length, but you proved your feminine sagacity by curtly dismissing him with a neatly worded paragraph. I'll wager another slab of chocolate cake, sans the icing, (it might be grainy, like the boob we're discussing) that our anti-moralist reads the Journal in a pool hall.

A. Clothes do have something to do with morals, as many girls who adopted ultra-abbreviated skirts and rolled hose could testify, if they would. It brought about a gradual breaking-down of modesty, which is the outer wall guarding morals.

Mr. Brute, I believe you are one of those people who improve on acquaintance!

Dot: I can't tell you about exercise for muscles of the eyes, but I am forwarding your request to Frederick Haskin, who had an article on the subject, a year or so ago. I shall be glad to publish his reply.

Tea Wagon Saves Steps.

The housewife who serves three meals a day for a family of five or six, without the help of a maid will find a tea wagon, or even a home-made table or tray on wheels, her best aid. If she will think about her work and analyze it she can use the tea wagon to save many steps and much weariness. When setting the table, all vegetable and food dishes, as well as salad and desert plates, soup plates and bread and cake plates may be taken from the china closet and wheeled to the kitchen or pantry, as the case may be. The food may then be taken from the stove, or the refrigerator, and placed on the dishes and all wheeled to the dining room and transferred quickly to the table. The desert may remain on the tea wagon until time to serve it. The housewife may take her place at the table with the family, and not be obliged to make numerous trips to the kitchen. The table may be cleared before the dessert is served, and the food dishes removed and the soiled dishes placed on the lower shelf of the tea wagon, with a clean cover thrown over them. When the meal is finished all the dishes are placed on the tea wagon, the table is crumbed and the tea wagon wheeled to the kitchen. There the food is put away, the dishes scraped and piled, then washed rinsed and dried, stacked on the tea wagon and wheeled to the china closet and put in their places. Such systematic handling of this phase of housework will save the housewife many steps and much weariness.

How to Bathe Face to Remove Wrinkles

Since its remarkable astringent and tonic properties became known, clever women all over the country have been using the saxolite face bath to "tone up" their faces, remove wrinkles and draw flabby cheeks and neck back to normal. After using the solution, the face immediately feels much firmer. The skin tightens evenly all over the face, thus reducing lines and sagginess. The formula is: Powdered saxolite, one ounce dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint. These ingredients are of course perfectly harmless and there is no difficulty in obtaining them at any drug store or toilet counter.—Advertisement.

MAY RELEASE ALL CAPTIVES

FOREIGNERS EXPECT DISCHARGE FROM BANDIT CAMP.

Major Allen and W. Smith Already Freed by Chinese Brigands—To Hold Chinese Prisoners for Ransom.

PEKING, May 31.—Remaining foreign captives in the Chinese bandit camp may be released some time today.

This was the indication contained in advices from the interior, where J. B. Powell, newspaper man, and Roy Anderson, government confidante, are concluding negotiations with the outlaw chiefs.

Maj. Robert A. Allen, American army officer, and the Englishman, W. Smith, already have been freed.

The brigands, it is said, have decided to let the foreigners go without ransom, altho they expect to hold Chinese prisoners for whose release they are demanding heavy payments.

Major Allen is attached to the army medical corps at Manila and was on vacation leave when captured by the bandits. His wife and young son previously were released.

Smith is said to have been suffering ill health.

FLAYS PRISON REFORM

Senator Eldred Declares Best Convict Is Bread, Water and Hell.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 31.—"Give the inmates of prisons three things—bread, water and hell—and there won't be any repeaters," State Senator Foss O. Eldred declared in an address here.

Senator Eldred, who has been closely in touch with the reform system for a number of years, has become convinced that reform of criminals by gentle methods is impossible, he declared.

"Put the old fashioned cell blocks back in and you'll find the prisoners will have a decided inclination to steer clear of the institutions in the future."

CHILDREN RESCUED FROM HOSPITAL FIRE

Sixty-seven Crippled and Sick Youngsters Carried by Four Nurses From Pittsburgh Structure in Early Morning.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 31.—Four nurses, fighting their way thru flames and smoke carried sixty-seven crippled and sick children to safety when fire partly razed the children's hospital here today.

The children were taken from the burning building while still asleep.

John Gosnell, engineer, risked his life to reach the power room and close an open gas cock, thereby averting an explosion and saving two concrete wings.

Miss Laura Wilson, superintendent, was trapped in her bedroom on the second floor. She climbed out of the window and dressed on the roof. Scaling a gable, she crawled to a fire escape, reached the ground and directed the rescue work until firemen arrived.

The fire, which started from explosion of a hot water heater, destroyed the main part of the hospital at a loss of $60,000.

Sixteen firemen were injured or overcome by fumes.

The four nurses who carried the children out of danger are Agnes Stover, Mildred Weigel, Mrs. Frances Pugh and Lillian Zimmerman.

"Patty," the Pomeranian pet of the kiddies for years, died in spreading the alarm. Soon after the explosion which rocked the building, "Patty" went dashing thru every ward of the hospital, barking, apparently set upon seeing all awakened. In the rush to get out the children, "Patty" was overlooked.

THE VITAL FLAME

A STIRRING SERIAL OF PRIMITIVE PASSIONS

By MAY CHRISTIE (Copyright)

CHAPTER LII.

They Meet Again.

"Speaking of the girl question," she remarked, "you've lots of old maids in this country, haven't you?"

The other wheeled about.

"We don't call 'em old maids. They're 'single women.' And we don't ever look down on 'em, as in your country. They're usually single from choice. And nearly all have interesting professions, and that's husband enough for them!"

"I suppose all of them could get married, if they wanted to?"

"Certainly. Any woman can get married, surely. You don't question that, do you?"

"Well," said Marcella slowly, "usually that's so. But in some countries, like France and England, there's supposed to be a man-shortage."

"Then the women who want to marry, and can't find a mate at home, ought to emigrate. Look at your tremendous colonies, just waiting for children to be born."

That fact was indisputable.

"Speaking of Englishmen," resumed the pretty Chicago girl, with considerable animation, 'I met the most fascinating creature today at a luncheon. I got the afternoon off from the office, to attend this function. That's why I'm here, and not working, as usual."

"I see," said Marcella, feeling that a comment was expected.

"He was so handsome! Such finish, and such lovely manners! And I simply loved his accent! How on earth do they do it?"

The English girl laughed outright.

"I rather expected him to be a freak," went on the other, confidentially, "because he's a sort of genius. High art and all that kind of thing. But he had the nicest clothes—sort of unobstrusive, yet 'just right,' and such a smart, simple cut!—and his hands weren't all clay, or paint, or whatever it is he does, but very clean and well groomed, with long slim fingers like a surgeon—"

"Who was this super-man?" inquired Marcella, much amused.

The answer was a staggering shock to her.

"A handsome fellow called Miles Holden. Intriguing name, isn't it?"

Intriguing it was to Marcella also—this name, Miles Holden, coming from the lips of this young Chicago girl. Was this Miles Holden who once loved her the same "handsome fellow" who fascinated her young American friend in the strange city of Chicago?

Ah, yes, there was the rumor of his visiting America. But the rumor was not confirmed. The rumor did not have to be confirmed. He was here. She felt it. It was a reality. The mention of his name in far off Chicago impressed her. It was a message of fate.

On the second morning of the Chicago visit, Marcella stole out by herself along the boulevard.

The news of Miles' presence in the town had been curiously disturbing She longed—yet dreaded—she might see him. He haunted her, yet she welcomed it. Somehow there was an inevitable attachment but it was never binding. Circumstances always seemed to interfere, and after the interference a new turn of affairs brought them together again.

And here he was in Chicago. Were they to meet here and were the flames of love to rise again from the fervor of their feeling for each other? How romantic and thrilling and desirable it would be, but then would it all end again so coldly, dispassionately? What was keeping them apart? The logical surmise of the whole affair ended discouragingly and distressingly whenever she dwelled on it. Miles loved her—she was convinced of this. But there was Warwick Treman—and her promise.

As tho Treman sensed the presence of a rival, he had safeguarded the girl's every moment, and even when she stayed up in her own room he had been 'on duty' in the lobby of the big hotel, seated in a chair opposite the elevators, or chatting with the newsstand girl, one eye on the alert for his uncertain young fiancee.

"He must know Miles' whereabouts," thought Marcella, perfectly aware of these maneuvers. He was talking to the head telephone operator—a red-headed woman—and she contrived to slip out of the door on the far side of the hotel, unobserved, and speed away. "Is it even possible that he is attempting to intercept any 'phone messages that come for me? I wonder "

Perhaps Miles had tried to get in touch with her? Perhaps he'd followed her to the Windy City? Wasn't there even a possibility that he had been on the same train, and that Warwick had seen him? Hence this bull dogging and detective work?

She had had a vague, persistent hope that he might be at last night's dinner, or afterwards at her father's lecture.

But no! Neither function witnessed his presence.

Marcella hurried along the boulevard, afraid of Treman following her. The urge to get away from him, to have a "breather" from the stifling confines of this "engagement," had never been so potent.

She drew long breaths of the keen air that blew across the lake.

"How huge Chicago is!" thought she, "and how almost impossible that Miles and I could accidentally meet each other!"

None the less, the hope lingered.

Crowds went hurrying away, with preoccupied faces that held a singleness of object, a desire to get somewhere in the quickest possible time.

"Even on Fifth avenue, they don't hurry so," thought Marcella.

The impression of riches, power and magnificent growth came back to her again with forcefulness. Last night at the dinner party her partner, a university man, had called the city "crude." But underlying that criticism she could sense the terrific pride and love he felt for it. Even as a newcomer, she could feel Chicago's potent charm. Young it was and crude it might be, but it had a giant strength, a giant energy, and a giant brain.

She smiled at an advertisement on a news-stand:

"Be a Chicago Booster to Your Friends in Other Cities!"

Turning away from the boulevard, she smiled again at a restaurant which bore in enormous letters the one word: "EAT."

At last she reached Washington park, and paused before the dazzling snowiness of the monument to time. There were others gazing up at the triumphant piece of sculpture.

"Marcella!"

She turned quickly, her heart pounding in her throat. The one voice in all the world that had brought her so much of happiness . . . and so much of pain!

"Miles! You, here!"

Bargain-Love Born in Soul of Every Woman

"Women are born with mother-love and an innate instinct for bargain-hunting."

"Next to the love of masculine conquest, there is born in every woman's soul the love of a bargain. Next to being recognized as beautiful by the man she loves, EVERY WOMAN cherishes the idea that she has bought something for nothing."

"You see her at sales buying pans she will never use. You see her edging in at bargain counters to buy a pair of shoes she will never wear because she believes that the store is giving them away. You see her in dress shops trying to argue herself into believing that a size 40 fits her when she wears a 34 because she thinks the materials in the suit is wonderful for the price."

Though the famous author has hit woman and her bargain hunting instinct, he fails to add the tragedy touch. He forgets to say that with the strange instinct that she cannot help she finds in the light of another day that she got only what she paid for.

That holds true in cleaning, too. If a cleaner offers work at an unbelievably low price, he can't afford to do charitable work. He's got to cut his overhead somewhere. It's cheaper to employ tubercular workmen or use dirty gasoline.

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Way Leila Reached Home and Her Room.

BESS DEAN'S quick ear must have caught the purr of the taxi's motor, for it had no sooner stopped before the veranda steps of the Durkee home than the door opened and she appeared—her lithe, graceful figure thrown into relief by the electric porch-light, which she evidently had snapped on just before opening the door.

"Hello, folks!" she called gaily. "Here they are, Mother Durkee."

She flung the information over her shoulder, as she came down the steps of the veranda, and put out a cordial hand to Alfred, who was descending from the taxi.

"'Lo, Bess!" I noted gratifiedly that his tone and hand-shake were eminently perfunctory, and that his whole attention was centred upon the problem of getting Leila comfortably out of the taxi.

Whatever heartache Alfred had caused his bride by his attentions to Bess Dean, Leila at least would not be compelled to see her injury subordinated to conversation with the other woman.

I saw Bess Dean's eyes narrow as Alfred turned again to the interior of the taxi.

"I'm Not Hurt."

"What's the matter?" she asked, but her peremptory intonation almost made a demand of the query.

"Leila turned her ankle on the train," I leaned forward, and spoke in my smoothest, silkiest tones. "Alfred will carry her upstairs—if you'll just hold that door open for him."

There was nothing for her to do but to assent, and she was shrewd enough to do it gracefully.

"Oh, surely," she said, and turned toward the house, as Mrs. Durkee came through the door. I wondered if Bess Dean would use the quick wit and tact with which she is naturally endowed to reassure the little woman, and the next second I paid her an admiring mental tribute as her voice rang out gaily.

"What do you think Leila's done, Mother Durkee? She's turned her ankle so she can get herself carried upstairs. I'd never have the luck to have a good-looking man handy if I should turn mine. No," with emphasis, as little Mrs. Durkee caught at her arm. "She isn't badly hurt."

"I'm not hurt a bit, Mother," Leila called. "I know I could walk if Alf would let me. But he is so stubborn."

Skilful Diplomacy.

She was comfortably settled in Alfred's arms as she spoke, and the smile she gave him was worth a man's close attention. But my scrutiny, jealous for my friend, detected but a perfunctory answering smile, and his voice, though it was roughly tender, had an irritated inflection, or so I fancied.

"I'm all of that, and then some," he said, "and you're not going to put your foot to the ground, so stop fussing about it. Thank you, Bess," as she swung wide the door. "You're a good scout."

There was no mistaking the geniality of the smile he flashed at the graceful girl whose eyes were furtively watching him. I saw Mrs. Durkee glance swiftly from Bess Dean's face to that of her son, and unseen by either, her own countenance took on an aspect so incongruously ferocious, that despite my anxiety for Leila, I had hard work to keep from laughing aloud.

I caught the little woman's hand as I passed her, and gave her fingers a significant squeeze.

"Keep Bess down here," I murmured. "I'll go upstairs and help Leila."

She gave me a comprehending return clasp.

"She'll stay down here," she whispered vindictively, and then raised her voice for the benefit of the others.

"Madge, you know just what Leila needs, will you go up and take care of her with Alf? Call me if you need me, although two of you will be plenty. Call me if you need anything, or if you want me to telephone the doctor.

"Bess," she turned to her, "you'll keep me company down here, won't you? How glad I am that you girls are here tonight. I would have been terribly upset if this had come on me when I was alone. Let's look at the dinner, Bess. We'll have to contrive some way to keep it hot until they're ready. I wonder if Leila will have a tray upstairs. If she does, it's a cinch Alfred will want to eat up there with her."

HER PROBLEMS :: By Annette Bradshaw

WHEN ONE MUST BE UP-TO-THE-INSTANT, EVEN IN FANCY DRESS

PIERRETTE—No, dear, that lovely little girl isn't a puzzle! Can't you see that on the white oilcloth costume she's wearing is painted an odd flower? And her hair, Chinese fashion, and those ducky little slippers carry out the idea splendidly. She's a Mah-Jong tile!

YOUR HEALTH

What Your Saliva Does to Help Digest Your Food

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DR. COPELAND

WITHOUT the saliva, digestion and assimilation of food would be seriously embarrassed. It is one of the essential body fluids. There are three sets of glands producing saliva. The "parotid gland" is set into the face directly in front of the ear. Its duct, or passageway, opens into the mouth near the second molar tooth of the upper jaw.

The "sublingual gland" lies under the tongue, as the name indicates. A number of ducts lead from this to the mouth.

The "submaxillary gland" lies under the lower jaw about half-way between the parotid and sublingual glands. The duct opens near the middle of the lower side of the tongue. Besides these large salivary glands, there are any number of small glands throughout the mucous membrane lining the mouth and cheeks. The amount of saliva produced by the combined action of all these glands is about a quart in 24 hours.

The uses of the saliva are several, but its chief use is to moisten your food and thus make it possible to swallow it. If you have ever tried to swallow a capsule without water, or a piece of perfectly dry food, you know how difficult it is. Moisture is necessary to the swallowing process.

In dogs this is the only use of saliva. There is no digestive property in his saliva, but he is given a flood of it, to help float into his stomach the food he snatches and bolts.

In man, however, digestion of the food begins in the mouth. One particular food, starch, is quite transformed by the saliva. In the short space of one minute, starch is converted into sugar by the action of the salivary secretion.

Solid starch, as in biscuits or the various cereals, is not acted upon appreciably because the delay in the mouth is not long enough to permit the full effect. However, if the mass is thoroughly chewed, thus permitting a full admixture of saliva, the salivary action will be continued after the food reaches the stomach.

You should take pains at each and every meal to chew your food thoroughly. You will understand now why it should be done, especially if starchy foods are set before you.

Unfortunately, breakfast is a hastily eaten meal. The commuter, the office man, the stenographer, the manicurist, the broker, the doctor, the lawyer, the launderer, the maid, the orter, the school child—it makes no difference what the vocation—breakfast is eaten too fast. This is unfortunate, to say the least, for it is decidedly detrimental to the health. Above all other meals, the nature of breakfast is such that time for thorough mastication is most essential. Otherwise the digestion of the food is interfered with at the very first place it should be started.

Anything stimulating to the emotions and appetites will increase the flow of saliva. Therefore, good company, good food and an occasional change in both will do much to promote digestion.

Answers to Health Questions

H. A. N. Q—Will you please tell me if —— is being used for ——?

A—Yes, this is being used for the condition you mention. You should take whatever treatment your doctor advises after a careful examination.

M. J. Q—Will you please tell me what to do for a small vein in my leg which burst?

A—You probably have varicose veins. You should wear an elastic stocking or bandage and keep off your feet as much as possible.

A READER. Q—Will you please tell me what will promote the growth of the eyelashes?

A—Yellow oxide of mercury ointment, 1 per cent., will help to improve the growth of the eyelashes. Put this on your eyelashes before retiring.

E. P. Q—Will you please tell me what causes nosebleeds?

A—Nosebleeds are usually due to ulcers on the nasal septum. In persons over 40 they are often due to high blood-pressure. You should consult a nose specialist for an examination and treatment.

H. R. Q—I am a young man and am troubled with a very poor memory. I smoke cigarettes and drink a great deal of coffee. Will you please tell me if this would cause my trouble?

A—Both habits may have some bearing on this condition. Stop smoking and do not take more than one cup of coffee per day. Also try committing some verse of poetry to memory each day. This will help you.

M. B. N. Q—I have severe pains at the base of my spine. Will you kindly tell me the cause of this condition?

A—I would suggest that you consult a physician for an X-ray and follow the advice he gives you. This condition may be due to a displacement of the coccyx—the small bone at the end of the spine.

A. F. L. Q—Will you please tell me if there is anything harmful in ——?

A—I cannot advise you about the preparation you mention, as I do not know anything about it.

MRS. S. L. Q—I am troubled with pains in my left side. I have been told that this is nothing to worry about, but I am afraid that my heart is causing the trouble. Will you please tell me what to do?

A—If a physician advised you not to worry he probably was right. However, it would be well to consult a specialist in heart diseases to make sure there is no organic trouble present.

O. E. C. Q—For the last two years my tongue has been coated. My tonsils do not trouble me, but there is a white spot on one of them which resembles a pimple. Will you kindly advise me regarding this condition?

A—Constipation is the cause of your tongue being coated. You should have your throat examined by your physician and have the white spot removed, as this is a follicular condition.

Good Night Stories

WHY MR. CRICKET CARRIES FOUR FEELERS.

"WELL, good morning, Mr. Cricket," laughed Mrs. Field Mousie, as she opened the door to her little house and peeked out into the sunshine. "And how is the world treating you this lovely day?"

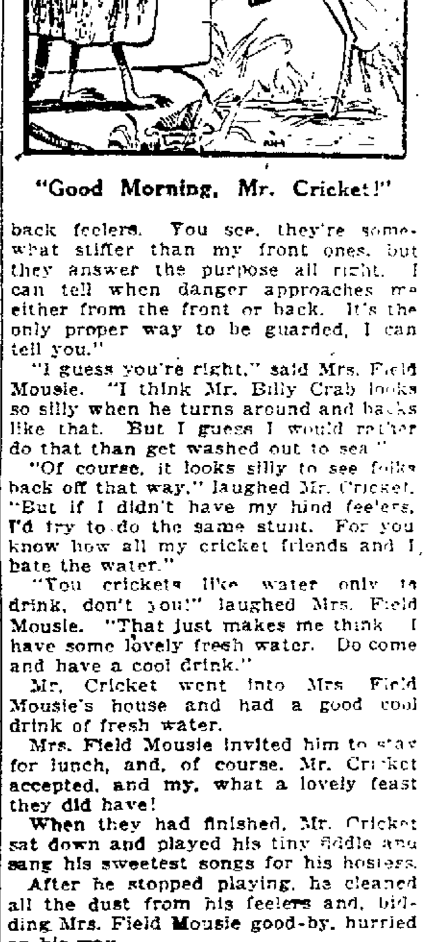

"Very well, indeed," chirped Mr. Cricket. "But I'll tell you, if it hadn't been for my tail feelers I——"

"You don't mean it!" exclaimed Mrs. Field Mousie. "I've often wondered why you had two pairs of feelers instead of one. So you had trouble?"

"Indeed, I did," laughed Mr. Cricket. "It happened this way: I took a trip down to the shore, and there I met Billy Crab. We were sitting on the sand telling yarns when all of a sudden I saw Billy Crab turn around quickly and back off as fast as he could go. Just then something touched my hind feelers and I ran as fast as I could go and just got out of the way of a big wave in time. My goodness! If that wave had ever gotten past the tip end of those hind hairs of mine, I'd never have been here today chatting with you."

"Well, well!" cried Mrs. Field Mousie. "So that's the reason you carry feelers both front and back?"

"Certainly, it is," laughed Mr. Cricket. "And woe to me if I hadn't had those back feelers. You see, they're somewhat stiffer than my front ones, but they answer the purpose all right. I can tell when danger approaches me either from the front or back. It's the only proper way to be guarded, I can tell you."

"Good Morning, Mr. Cricket!"

"I guess you're right," said Mrs. Field Mousie. "I think Mr. Billy Crab looks so silly when he turns around and backs like that. But I guess I would rather do that than get washed out to sea."

"Of course, it looks silly to see folks back off that way," laughed Mr. Cricket. "But if I didn't have my hind feelers, I'd try to do the same stunt. For you know how all my cricket friends and I hate the water."

"You crickets like water only to drink, don't you!" laughed Mrs. Field Mousie. "That just makes me think I have some lovely fresh water. Do come and have a cool drink."

Mr. Cricket went into Mrs. Field Mousie's house and had a good cool drink of fresh water.

Mrs. Field Mousie invited him to stay for lunch, and, of course, Mr. Cricket accepted, and my, what a lovely feast they did have!

When they had finished, Mr. Cricket sat down and played his tiny fiddle and sang his sweetest songs for his hostess.

After he stopped playing, he cleaned all the dust from his feelers and, bidding Mrs. Field Mousie good-by, hurried on his way.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of 20 years, employed in an office.

One day during business hours, a young man came into the office, and since I was the only person in at the time, I attended to the business at hand. Somehow—perhaps it's imagination, although I'm considered attractive and pretty—he seemed interested in me and prolonged the conversation as much as possible. He was very interesting and I felt as though I wanted to know him better.

What I would like to know is whether there is some way of meeting this young man again.

He came in a second time, but I did not speak to him, since the person attending to his line of business was in the office at the same time. However, on leaving he glanced my way with seeming interest.

I know his name, since he left his card, but he doesn't know mine.

ANXIOUS.

ANXIOUS: You will have to wait, my dear, until you are properly introduced to this man or meet him under conditions which would warrant your forming a friendship with him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 19 years of age and have been going with a man for about two years. He says he loves me; but I don't believe he does. When we go places he doesn't pay any attention to me. He seems to be true to me, but he is so important and scolds me for little things.

Do you think if he really loved me he would talk to me that way? Would he pay more attention to other girls at dances and places than he does to me? If you were I, would you keep on going with him?

LOVESICKNESS.

LOVESICKNESS: The man must care for you or he would not see you as often as he does. You are not engaged and it is only natural for him to be courteous to other girls. However, if he makes you unhappy I would not take him too seriously. Keep his friendship, but have other young men friends, too.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 20 years of age and have been going with a young man almost a year younger than I am for about two years.

I have been engaged to him for about a year. He says he loves me, but he doesn't show it at times. He is high-tempered and quarrels with me. My sister objects to my even going with him. She says he is too young. I love him and feel that it would be hard to give him up, but sometimes I get disgusted with him and think it would be a bit hard to be married to him. He asks me to wait for him for two years. I don't know what to do. Could you give me a little advice?

DOLLY DIMPLES.

DOLLY DIMPLES: If you are not sure that you love this young man it would be well to break your engagement and then at the end of the two years decide what you want to do. Time is the only thing which will help in your case.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

How Mme. Ristori Won the Hearts of Her Countrymen.

VERY few persons in any art or profession start their careers when they are in swaddling clothes.

But Adelaide Ristori, the great Italian actress, did. She made her debut on the stage when she was just 3 months old. She did not have exactly what one might term a speaking part. But she made herself heard.

She had been born to a couple of traveling players who at the time of her birth were acting in Venice.

In their performance was a scene where a basket of eggs, fruit, vegetables and chickens was brought on the stage. At an unexpected moment out of the basket was lifted a baby! This baby was the future pride of Italy—Mme. Ristori.

Mme. Ristori literally grew up in the theatre. So accustomed to acting was she, that at the age of 16 she was offered the part of leading lady in a well-known stock company.

But her father was far-sighted enough to see that this might spoil her ability as an artist and that it was better for her to grow up gradually to such parts. She was then engaged to play roles suiting her age and made an immediate success.

She Won a Soldier's Life from the Queen of Spain.

It is interesting to know that so wrapped up in her work was this budding genius, and so thorough in her study of characters, that she even went to insane asylums to study types of madness and to note their actions.

Before she was [illegible] the Italian audiences realized it, Mme. Ristori was an institution in her country. She was their great actress and was sincerely loved and loyally supported.

At the height of her success, she fell in love with and married the Marquis de Grillo. So happy was the match that her ambitions faded in the thoughts of a home and the peace and quiet which accompany it. She considered retiring from the stage.

But one satisfaction was desired by her before she retired. She wanted to prove that she was an artist, even to the French people, who at that time were worshipping at the feet of the talented Rachel.

No sooner had Mme. Ristori played before the French audiences than they were conquered.

Then followed success after success in Berlin, Vienna, St. Petersburg and New York. She even traveled on her tour of triumph as far as Australia, South America, Ceylon and Egypt.

Not only did Mme. Ristori play in her own tongue, but she mastered English and French as well. So perfect was her English that she supported Edwin Booth in "Macbeth" in New York.

At one time in the performance of the heroine, Phedre, Mme. Ristori worked herself up to such a pitch of emotional fervor that she fell in an apparent fit and injured herself badly as she fell among the footlights.

At another time, in Spain, where her success was unsurpassed, a soldier was sentenced to be executed. Some of his friends begged Mme. Ristori to appeal to the Queen to pardon him.

Between the acts on an evening when the Spanish sovereign was seated in the royal box, Ristori appeared before Her Majesty. With such an outburst of compassion and with such convincing pathos did she plead for this man's life, that the Queen was moved to pardon the culprit, which she did at once.

Mme. Ristori carried with her her love of her native land and did much to win friends for the country which she loved and which she so nobly represented in her art.

So deeply was this appreciated by her countrymen that in speaking to her of her influence, Cavour, the distinguished statesman, said:

"Use that authority of yours for the benefit of our country, and I will not only applaud in you the first actress of Europe, but also the most efficacious co-operator with our diplomatic negotiations."

Mme. Ristori gave up her public career and retired to private life in 1885 and lived quietly and simply until her death in 1906.

Her name is reverenced by her countrymen with more deference than is usually accorded an actress. She was more than one who gave pleasure through her art. She was a national figure and undoubtedly will always be remembered as such.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Solving the Problem of Summer Chintzes for the Household.

NEVER was choice made more difficult for the home shopper than it has been the past spring. The fascination of the new chintzes and cretonnes is hard to resist if one does not really need such things, while consternation prevails when a selection must be made.

Glazed chintz, greatly favored by English housewives, is offered in a wide selection of designs and is used for window-shades, lamp-shades and screen-panels.

The curtains or shades—if the windows are not too wide—may be made without piecing, but if the windows are wide, it is better to get the striped patterns which do not show the piecing.

Lamp-shades made of the chintz are charming. For large lamps they are made on Empire frames with a contrasting ribbon border top and bottom, usually in black. Some of the smaller shades are accordion-pleated and the effect is very unusual. Again the shades are panelled with bright chintz that cuts well for this use, and often panels of the heavy Russian filet lace are introduced. Sometimes the lace is worked over with a few of the colors appearing in the work and many women have it in their work-bags where knitting was but recently stowed away. Lace bed-spreads are also made with chintz stripes or motifs after the manner of the shades.

Dark cretonnes of the most velvety appearance are quite the smartest of the season's offerings. Patterns are large and striking—some in period designs, others of the familiar bird and tree, urn and flower patterns. The Chinese cedar tree and persimmon design is striking and brilliant but very harmonious in its brilliancy.

Sofa-pillows are being made of the large figured designs for sun parlors and porches. A design is chosen so that when folded over it produces the same pattern on either side, which simplifies the making of the pillow-cover. A large bird design in gorgeous coloring on a velvety black background with a spray of flowering shrub for the bird to rest upon, seems to be a particular favorite, with a Japanese pumpkin design as a close second.

Many of the cretonne motifs cut off clearly and are used as transfers on heavy unbleached muslin for curtains and spreads. The motifs are couched in place with heavy black floss stitched over with a color which brings up the coloring like a framed water-color. The beauty of this method of decoration is that it launders perfectly if salt water is added to the water of the first washing and only white soap and tepid water are used. Many persons are particular to have the cretonne dried in the shade, so that not an atom of the color will be lost.

Many light grounds are to be found with old-fashioned patterns, such as the lattice with the climbing rose, the rose rope stripes, single poppies and dainty old-time nosegays.

The chintz room is much more "chintzy" than it was in our grandmother's day. For not only the bed is fitted with it, and the curtains, of course, but the table-covers are made of it and the furniture is slipped with it. Shoe-boxes, waist-boxes, dress-bags, and, in fact, everything in the room seems to come in for its share.

In making up large and bright patterned materials for curtains there is a band of the plain dark color or black, put on the edge, which acts as a sort of frame.

Then where the room is very light the curtain is lined with the most prominent color in the design which softens the lighting and does not rob the design of too much of its color.

The ties are usually made of the color of the border, with big rosettes of the bright goods as a finish.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Smart Street Costume of Gray Enlivened with Gay Color.

MADAME has an embroiderer whom I consider a regular wizard at his work.

"Let's go down and see Henri," Gaby suggested the other day. "I know he'll be doing something fascinating."

He works in one of the down-stairs workrooms, and down we trooped to pay him a visit.

"Where is that stunning little snake?" Gaby asked.

Henri went to a work-box and pulled out the most adorable little wriggly snake made of glittering colored beads.

"It's for a girdle on Miss Lockett's new dinner dress," Gaby explained to me.

"I hope we can play with it for a while before it goes out of the house, for I've never seen anything so fascinating," I agreed with her.

"How do you like this, miss?" Henri asked, bringing forth a little gray crepe jacket embroidered in exquisite colors.

"Oh, that's the jacket that Miss Van Slyke ordered to match her gray crepe frock," Gaby enlightened me.

"What kind of a frock?" I asked, showing immediate interest.

"Pleated gray crepe," she answered, showing more interest in examining the jacket than in enlightening me about the frock.

"Did you ever see colors chosen with a better eye for blending and for the gray background?" she asked me.

I let my eye rest on the lovely embroidery in silver, blue, green and watermelon pink and agreed with her.

"That's why Madame retains Henri," I said, casting an appreciative glance in his direction.

Henri busied himself with a few last stitches on the watermelon grosgrain ribbon that finished the neck and bottom of the jacket, pretending not to hear me.

"He knows very well Madame would consider her right-hand man gone if she lost Henri," I continued, knowing that he was probably enjoying the blarney.

Gray Crepe Forms Both This Pleated Frock and Its Embroidered Jacket.

"Sketch the costume for me, won't you?" I asked of Gaby.

She quickly drew a stunning young lady wearing a frock made of the finest kind of knife pleats.

"There is a narrow plain section up the front of the blouse and around the yoke," she explained. "But this hardly shows when the jacket is on. In fact, it doesn't show at all when the jacket is tied with a jaunty little bow at the neck and another where the ribbon binding ends in front."

As she spoke she finished sketching, letting the little ribbon ties hang loose.

"Careless ease," I labelled the sketch, as she gave a flourish to the last ribbon.

"The hat is rose-colored crepe with gray grosgrain ribbon across the top," she informed me.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, JUNE 1.

This should be a satisfactory and progressive day, judging by the benefic testimonies of important planets. With Venus, Jupiter and Uranus friendly, there should be favorable conditions in all affairs and there should be opportunity for a change or a journey which should result in decided advantage. It is advised that excellent care be given the health lest this prove an obstructing or delaying factor. Also, there is a warning against false friends.

Those whose birthday it is have the prospect of an important year, with benefits through change or travel. They should be very careful of the health, which may prove a disturbing factor. It is urged that the danger of betrayal by false friends be avoided. A child born on this day will be fond of change and may be expected to rise in life.

COTNER CLASS TOLD OF DEBT

DR. HARMON DISCUSSES OBLIGATIONS TO SOCIETY.

Annual Commencement Exercises for College Seniors Held Thursday Morning at the Christian Church in Bethany.

"The College Man's Debt to the Social Order", was the subject of the address given to the graduating class at Cotner and a large group assembled at the Bethany Christian church Thursday morning by Dr A D Harmon former president of the college, who is now president of Transylvania college, in Kentucky

The thesis of Dr Harmon's address was this: "We are entering upon a new age in civilization. The college man has produced it. Since he has destroyed the old order, he is under moral bonds to build a new one" civilization," said the speaker may be regarded as a continuous plane apparently moves for centuries upon a level and then rises to a higher one. When the break comes in the ... of civilization a new age is dawning

"We are now on the eve of a new age. But what constitutes a new age? The fact that some new things are introduced into civilization does not constitute a new age, any more than the fact that some things persist from one age to another does not indicate that the age has not changed. A new age arrives when the carriers of civilization change. Civilization has carriers as definite as a steel box upon gears which transports goods from one station to another. Whenever these carriers enlarge or decrease their content we have a modified civilization. When they completely change their content we have a new age.

The greatest carrier of civilization is the mores. The mores is simply the average man's way of looking at the average thing. A civilization does not obtain until a big group of people look at the same thing in the same way. That constitutes the difference between eastern and western civilization. The mores has always expressed itself definitely regarding sickness. A century ago there was a mystic notion that surgery was a flaunting of providence. What has changed this attitude of the average man? It has been the laboratory and the democracy of education. Pasteur taught us the germ theory of life. We know no what health depends upon cleanliness and physiology has taught us that the human body is a mechanism and must be treated mechanically.

The family is the second great carrier of civilization. Its purpose is to reproduce its kind and transmit social wealth from one generation to another. The family has been de-centered. The prevalence of divorce indicates this. The status of woman has become changed in the family. A generation ago the husband was the patriarch and autocrat of the family. Today the wife shares counsel with him and the family has become democratic.

"Governments likewise are carriers of civilization. Every lesser social unit in a nation takes the form of the superior unit in an autocratic government. Religion is autocratic, education is autocratic and the family is autocratic. In a government where the power comes up from the people every social unit is democratic. In a generation we have practically shifted from a world where the republics could be counted on one hand to a world where the autocracies can be counted on one hand. Both men and women have gone to school and are equally sharing the destinies of government.

Business is a carrier of civilization. The conditions under which a man makes his living are vitally determinant. Slowly thru the centuries the overlord has been losing his power until today there is an even clash between organized labor and organized capital. Why has labor become so powerful? It is the sequence of knowledge, the prevalence of popular education, night schools, Y M C A schools, Smith schools, industrial schools.

"Religion is a carrier of civilization. Religion has various functions. It stabilizes the social order. It establishes moral standards. No civilization can be changed until the grip of its religion has been broken. The Christian religion is rapidly changing. In a generation it has changed from scholastic theology to the social gospel from emphasis on the next world to emphasis upon the enlightening of this world. Practically every denomination today is divided into two camps—between the social gospel and Darwinism. Both of the questions were begun in the school room before they were raised in the church. They were academic before they were theological. It is popular education that has de-centered religion.

"As the educated man has about destroyed the old order is he competent to build a new? Intellect alone can not. Pure intellect is like a signboard. It points the way but does not move. The pure intellectualist can tell us every fact that must enter into the new order and then violate every precept he has declared. Pure intellect has never shown itself capable of either individual or social control. There is no infallible sequence between knowing and doing. Our actions follow our feelings. Because this is true, Lord Macauley said the wreck of every civilization has come as a sequence of the union of high intelligence and low morals. The meanest man in the community knows more truth than the best man practises. The need of our day, to meet the demands of the new age, is intellectual genius plus moral power. Nations break at the point of sagging morals. Morals sag at the point of human contacts. We have increased our contacts ten fold. He we likewise increased the size of our conscience?

"Unless this class faces their task with a heart bigger than their head it were better that they remained on the hillside, unsettled swains. If the only laurel you can lay upon the brow of your alma mater in after years is head genius heart power that crown will be a wreath of withered leaves.

"I congratulate you as those who are going forth to build a world, using both heart and mind. Yours is a great task. Your fathers matched their brawn against rigors of physical life. You are to put your spiritual universe. Your fathers on the frontiers of the continental, but I hail you as the builders of a new age—pioneers of the frontier of the planetary."

President C E Cobbey presented the diplomas and Prof J A Moss was marshal of the day. Preceding the address Miss Alice Sorensen of the piano department played Leslie Longman gave a violin solo 'Adoration' and Mrs Evabelle Long Fuller sang.

Tommy Milton Tells How it Feels to Win 500-Mile Classic

GIVES CREDIT TO ANOTHER WINNER

Howdy Wilcox, Forced Out With His Own Car, Relieved Milton for Forty-eight Laps—How Prize Money Goes.

BY TOMMY MILTON.
Winner 1923 International 500 Mile Race.

(Copyright, 1923, U. P.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 31.—It's a great sensation to win the Indianapolis 500 mile race. But it's a greater sensation to win it twice.

After my victory in 1921, I thought I would have to be content with places behind the leader in subsequent Indianapolis races—for no winner had ever repeated—until it was my fortune to do so yesterday in an H. C. S. Special.

Gives Wilcox Credit.

But it really took two previous winners to turn the trick, for I was greatly assisted by my team mate, Howdy Wilcox, who drove my car for me for forty-eight laps while I was having my blistered hands treated at the hospital.

The first sixty laps of the race was as thrilling as I ever have driven in. Altho I had the pole, Jimmy Murphy jumped from his position in the third row of starters to the lead and held it until the third lap. Then we alternated in the lead for a couple of turns and I led for nine consecutive laps with Murphy pushing me every inch of the way. Murphy took it again for a few turns, then I led and by the twenty-fifth lap Wilcox, who had also started in the third row, had worked himself to the front and passed both Murphy and myself. I remember distinctly that I led the twenty-fifth lap, Wilcox had the next and Murphy the next. So you see fortune was rather undecided upon which one of us should be favored.

From the thirty-eighth lap until the sixtieth, when my mate Wilcox was eliminated with a broken clutch, we duelled for first place. After Wilcox dropped out and Murphy had to make a lengthy pit stop, Cliff Durant and Harry Hartz began driving hard and Durant led me for three laps. I assumed the lead again in the sixty-seventh lap and held it until the 103rd when I came in for tires and supplies and relinquished the wheel to Wilcox who drove forty-eight laps for me. Hartz led by the margin we lost in the pit for ten laps and then Wilcox passed him.

Led by Two Laps.

I returned to the wheel in the 151st lap and was leading by a margin of two laps at the finish.

I was rather tired at the finish but victory assuaged the severe blisters on my hands and the natural fatigue of such a long grind. I believe I was more fatigued at the end of the 500 mile race in 1921. My motor never missed a "shot."

It was particularly gratifying to win this race for Harry C. Stutz in one of his H. C. S. Specials, because it is his return to the great gasoline sport after an absence of many years.

Milton Receives $28,500 as Winner

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 31.—Tommy Milton, two times winner of the 500-mile sweepstakes automobile race, will receive $28,500 for his victory.

Of this amount $20,000 will be first prize money and $8,500 far leading in 85 of the first 100 laps of the race.

Milton also won the first money in 1921 and is the only driver to twice carry off the first prize in the classic contest.

How Money is Divided.

Other prizes were: Hartz, second, $10,000; Murphy, third, $5,000; Hearne, fourth, $3,500; Corum, fifth, $3,000; Elliott, sixth, $2,200; Durant, seventh, $1,800; Sailer, eighth, $1,600; DeCystria, ninth, $1,500; Morton, tenth, $1,400.

Wilcox pulled down $2,000 in lap money, Murphy $1,100; Durant $400 and Hartz $100.

One boy was fatally injured and four others received serious injuries in yesterday's race. Bert Schoup died in the Methodist hospital last night of a fractured skull received when he was hit by the Durant driven by Tom Alley.

Alley Not Badly Hurt.

Alley is reported recovering from his injuries today, which were not as serious as first repoted. Jacob Krauses, Stuttgart, Germany, suffered a bruised leg when a Mercedes crashed into the retaining wall.

Engineers advocating the small piston displacement cars regard the race as a victory for the 122-inch piston displacement engine.

When Williams had played in twenty-five games his batting average was .354.

DUNDEE LOSES HIS TRICK RING TITLE

Jack Bernstein Is New "Junior Lightweight Champion"—Kilbane May Meet Dundee After Bout With Criqui.

NEW YORK, May 31.—One of the New York boxing commission's trick titles, the junior lightweight championship, rests on a new dome today. Jack Bernstein, a Yonkers product, won a fifteen round decision last night from Johnny Dundee.

The transfer of the trick title is important only in that Dundee, one of the ring's greatest and most picturesque performers, may have reached the end of his strong. Dundee was beaten al lthe way.

Unlike Jess Willard, Babe Adams and Dick Dudolph, who have been socking the age-youth theory, Dundee went down because he was unable to register on a younger and more rugged opponent.

Dundee has been promised a match with the winner of Saturday's featherweight bout between Kilbane and Eugene Criqui. Unless Kilbane has slipped as far as Dundee has, the venerable featherweight champion has little to fear from the Frenchman, and less from Dundee.

Dundee was not strong against Bernstein at 128 1-2 pounds, and it is certain that he will not be any stronger if Kilbane forces him to make the featherweight poundage.

Outside of the heavyweight division recent indications do not indicate the transfer of many other ring titles this summer.

BASEBALL TEAM LEAVES: HOLLAND CHOSEN MANAGER.

The baseball team shoved off Thursday at 1:30 for Lawrence, where they will meet the Jayhawkers Friday afternoon. Kansas plays the last game of the season here Saturday afternoon at Landis field, starting at 3:30 p. m. The outcome of the Nebraska-Kansas games will not effect the Jayhawkers. They have first place cinched even if they lose both to the Huskers.

The players making the trip to Kansas included Captain Carmen, Lewellen, Peterson, Gibbs, Dolezal, Petty, Smaha, Volz, Collins, Hubka, Russell, Arries, Janda and Coach Earl Carr.

Lyle Holland was selected as senior student manager for next year. The appointment of a junior assistant manager was deferred in both baseball and track because all of the candidates were low scholastically.

NAVY HONORS ATHLETE, WHO TRIED FOUR YEARS

Richard C. Kendall, a West Virginia midshipman at Annapolis, was given a gold watch as a prize "for trying." It was the first time that a big college recognized the gamest and noblest boys in athletes, the "drudges" who haven't the stuff and refuse to admit it.

Kendall slaved for four hard years trying to earn a place in the 'varsity rowing shell, but he failed. There is no sport calling for so much heart and giving such a little reward as rowing.

Even if Kendall did fail to make good, his example of spirit must have been so inspiring that in his humble place he might have done more good than at the stroke oar of the 'varsity.

The citation for his decoration read:

"To a non-'varsity oarsman whose spirit helped to make the United States Naval Academy crew for 1923."

KRIEGER HAS NO TROUBLE WINNING

Lincoln Wrestler Who Meets Clem Here Takes Two Falls From South Dakota Champion in Thirty Minutes.

MOBRIDGE, S. D., May 31.—Adam Krieger, Lincoln, Neb., had little trouble in disposing of Roy Mitchell, South Dakota champion, in straight falls here Wednesday night. Krieger got the first fall in twenty-seven minutes with a toe-hold and the second fall three minutes after the grapplers started at it again. He used a wrist-lock to gain the last fall. Krieger meets Young Hackenschmidt here Saturday night.

H. C. Wittmann, manager of Krieger, was elated upon receipt of the news from the match at Mobridge, S. D. "That's the way we are training for the bout with Gus Clem here next week," Manager Wittmann said.

ENGLAND STILL HAS GOLFERS

May Be a Joke in the Ring But John Bull Is No Dupe on Links.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Johnny Bull may be the globe's biggest joke in the ring, he may not be able to ride a horse in polo, and as a tenniser he may be a bust, but John can still play golf.

The superiority of the British amateur golf game was shown most conclusively in the recent British championships when the American team was perhaps fortunate in being able to provide the runner-up in Francis Ouimet.

The American team was the most formidable ever sent in quest of the coveted British titles, and even if Ouimet did win that famous St. George's cup, something no American had ever done before, it is the amateur crown that John is most proud of and most desirous of retaining.

Chick Evans, in deciding at the last moment not to go to England, did weaken the American team, but it is doubtful if the result would have been different had the noted Chick been over there doing his stuff.

Play Country Club Flag Tournament

Phil Aitken playing with a handicap of ten won the flag tournament held on the country club links Wednesday afternoon. On his last shot, the eighty-second, he put the ball in the eighteenth hole. Par on the course is seventy-two. Ray Elliott, with a handicap of sixteen, placed his flag within four feet of the eighteen hole on his last shot. A prize of six golf balls will be presented to the winner and the runner-up will be awarded with four golf balls.

Most of the hundred entries in the tournament placed their flags on the seventeenth fairway. Several of the golfers succeeded in planting their markers on the eighteenth green. F. B. Amspoker who played with a handicap of sixteen, placed his flag within six feet of the last hole, R. H. Harrison, whose handicap was fifteen, finished within ten feet of the last cup, and Dr. Walter Aitken, playing with a handicap of fourteen, set his marker within fifteen feet of the cup.

Dempsey Refuses To Tolerate Gang of "Friends" Who Brawl Near His Camp

Experience at Atlantic City Has Made Champion Careful About Crowd Attached to His Staff—Has Remarkable Memory.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
CHAPTER II.

NEW YORK, May 31.—When Jack Dempsey went to Atlantic City to start training for the defense of his title against Georges Carpentier, one of the first acquaintances he made was with Mayor Bader the city's executive.

Dempsey and the mayor became fast friends and they used to do an hour or so on saddle horses early every morning. The mayor was criticized by the reform element which was then waging a campaign against him and Dempsey knew about it.

Some gangsters, from New York, with whom Dempsey had a passing acquaintance went down to Atlantic City and attached themselves to the champion's retinue. They engaged in brawls nearly every night on the board walk, wrecking eating places and cabarets and indulging in a general rumpus. They were referred to as the "Dempsey crowd" altho Jack had nothing to do with them.

Finally when the reformers started after the mayor about it and asked to have Dempsey his camp and his staff, thrown out of town, Dempsey stormed up the boardwalk one night in a terrible huff. He approached the gang that was hanging out in front of the hotel where he had his business headquarters and he told them in pointed words that if they didn't leave town and stay away from him he would use his good fists on them.

Drove Off Gang.

They left town that night and were not seen again. Dempsey had words with his manager about it and he told him that he would never stand for a repetition of the affair in the future.

The gang has since criticized Dempsey for getting "up stage" against friends "who knew him when he was——."

Since that time Dempsey has been very careful about the element that might be referred to as the "Dempsey crowd."

Dempsey has a remarkable ability for remembering names and faces.

During a baseball meeting at the Belmont hotel about four years ago, Dempsey strutted thru the lobby which was filled with newspapermen, baseball celebrities and hotel guests. He was surrounded by a crowd and among a score or more who were introduced to him was a writer, new in New York from the bushes. He hardly could have caught the name and he scarcely could have had more than a casual glance at the stranger, but he remembered him.

Two years later, without having seen him in the meantime, the sport writer went to Summit, N. J., where Dempsey was doing some light training in preparation for the Carpentier fight.

Dempsey walked down from the porch when he approached, stretched out his big hand, called him by name and remarked—"Haven't seen you since that day up at the Belmont. You ought to come around once in a while." The champion then "upbraided" him for riding out to the camp in a taxi when a telephone call would have placed the big Dempsey $15,000 limousine at his disposal.

A Perfect Host.

The champion presides at the table with the finesse of a cultured banker. He has acquired manners that would do justice to one who had had the advantages of education and social culture and as a host he is almost perfect.

Dempsey has read a lot and by doing most of the listening he has become well informed on general subjects. He is very clean spoken, uses mild profanity only for occasional emphasis and has never been known to make a blunder with an untactful remark. He does not like "dirty stories".

The champion likes children and he takes the greatest delight in proving to members of the fair sex that he knows what a knife should be used for on the table and showing them that a fighter can be a gentleman.

Dempsey never uses an unkind word about anyone. He is always gracious in commenting upon opponents that he has vanquished in the ring and he is always willing to give credit. He admitted that Willard hurt him in Toledo and he said also that Bill Brennan had hurt him when they met the last time in Madison Square Garden.

He never defends himself against his critics. He might well have asked for the war records of some of the professional patriots who have been assailing him ever since he failed to get in a uniform, but he has never said a word in defense of himself and he is to be credited for it.

From time to time, it has been reported that Dempsey was about to be married, but he so far has dodged another matrimonial experiment. His ideas on this subject will be told in the next chapter.

DO YOU KNOW?

Is Georges Carpentier thru as a fighter? D. S.

Many Americans who saw the Frenchman recently on the other side expressed the opinion that he is thru. It has been proved that his hands are bad and when a boxer's hands go back on him he has reached the end.

How much did Col. Huston pay for his share in the New York Yanks and how much did he sell for? F. G.

Col. Huston is said to have paid $200,000 for his interest in the club and he is reported to have disposed of his stock recently to his former partner, Col. Ruppert, for $1,500,000.

Who is the official heavyweight champion of Europe? P. R. M.

Spalla, the Italian, is recognized as the heavyweight champion of Europe by the International Boxing Federation since he outpointed Vandveer, of Holland, the former champion by edict.

THAT MILD YOUNG MAN, LUIS!

Firpo Hurts His Hand in Last Fight Hitting Ringpost.

Luis Firpo, the South American giant, hurt his hand in the fight with McAuliffe, and had to call off several matches.

Jimmy DeForest, his trainer, explained that Firpo did not hurt the mitt on McAuliffe. He hit one of the ring posts.

Nice, mild boy, Luis!

Believe Two Points Enough to Win Meet

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 31.—A margin of two points will win the western conference annual track and field meet here tomorrow and Saturday, according to dopesters who predict the closest score of the past few years.

With five places to be given in each and second place counting four points instead of the customary three, first alone, will not win the meet. The count of the five places will be five-four, three, two and one. Time will be given this year in tenths.

The new arrangement will give Illinois a great advantage, it was said, as that university will have a number of stars in several of the races.

Preliminaries will be held tomorrow with finals Saturday.

TO PLAY PROTESTED GAME AT BEATRICE

Acting League President Fixes June 4 as Date for Play-Off—Zink Will Report to Links Soon.

BY JOHN BENTLEY.

The game over which there has been considerable yawping, between Beatrice and Lincoln, will be played next Monday at Beatrice, under the terms of a decree handed down by Dick Grotte, acting league president. Beatrice protested on the grounds that Lincoln's failure to appear should cost the Links the game, even tho it was not on the official schedule and the Links had agreed to play the Crete pastimers on that day, which was last Monday.

However, this decree from Mr. Grotte will, in all probability straighten out the difficulty.

New Southpaw Signed.

Ed Zink, a lefthander of merit, who has seen service in the Canadian, Western and Pacific coast leagues, will report to the Links early next week, C. N. Moon, one of the owners, announced Thursday. Zink has been attending the state university and he worked out with the Nebraska squad on several occasions.

"He showed me the best pitching I saw all season," Jeff Petty, Nebraska catcher, stated.

With the release of John Dillon, it left the Links almost nil in the southpaw department. Of course, there is Streamline Stanton, who, when he is good is very good indeed but when he's wild, he's terrible.

The Links complete the Beatrice series Thursday and move on over to Fairbury. There they play Friday and Saturday and then come back with the Coyotes. Manager George Segrist transferred these games to Lincoln and he is calling the occasion "Fairbury Day." He says he's going to bring the entire town up for the double matinee.

Lots of Them Here.

There were lots of Fairburians in the stands last Sunday when the Coyotes and Links tangled here.

A meeting of state league directors will be held June 20 to decide on the advisability of adopting another split season or continuing the race thru the entire summer.

OLSON IS GAME BALLPLAYER

Reward for Going After Hard Chances Has Been Abuse.

"Ivy" Olson, termed "Ivory" by the rabble, is one baseball player who deserves the same kind of decoration "Ivy" may be, as the Brooklyn fan consider him, the worst second base man in baseball, but with it he is just about the gamest player that ever walked on spikes.

For years Olson has been on the diamond trying all the time. He made many errors because he lacked the polish and technique of Collins, McManus, Frisch and other big stars and he made many errors because he went after everything.

His reward was abuse from the stands, day in and day out, season after season. When he had been benched and went out to the coaching line to keep up the valiant spirit of a game loser he was treated no better.

The Chamber of Commerce has called a meeting for next weeks to consider the proposition.

The widow of the murdered man and daughter of Dr. Egbert, gave birth to a daughter at Glenville ten days ago, and whether the case will be tried June 18 depends largely on whether she will be able to testify.

DIVORCED OVER RELIGION

Wife of Former Lieutenant Governor Pearson Given Freedom After Four Years.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 31.—Divorce without alimony was granted Mrs. Nancy Pearson, following a legal battle. Several causes of disagreement and incompatibility were brought out, but the trouble centered around religious differences. Mrs. Pearson had insisted on having their baby baptized in the Catholic church, over her husband's protest, and she left him April 14, brought suit for divorce, and had the baby duly baptized.

James Pearson was lieutenant governor of Nebraska and has served in the legislature. He has four children by an earlier marriage and Mrs. Pearson has five. They were married in 1919 at Stockville by a county judge and at Mrs. Pearson's request they were married by the Catholic ceremony six months later. The child was born September 18, 1922. Mr. Pearson testified that he objected to signing the contract for the second marriage, and that this incident was the rift in the lute. Mrs. Pearson refusing to speak to him for two weeks.

SUNDAY JAZZ IS TABOOED

Only Good Music Allowed at Concerts in Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Neb., May 31.—Jazz music for public concerts in Columbus on Sundays is taboo. This decision of Chief of Police Lehman was made when the band traveling with the Isler street carnival announced its intention of putting on a short concert on the balcony of the Evans hotel.

"If you want to play sacred, classic, patriotic or oldtime selections it's all right" said the chief to the players, but jazz music won't be played in a public concert on Sunday if I can help it. It sounds bad enough on week days."

Post Plantation Sold.

TABLE ROCK, Neb., May 31.—A deal was closed recently whereby Robert Etter purchased the forty acre tract some five miles southwest of Table Rock which is known far and wide as "Crow Roost." This tract was planted to osage and catalpa many years ago by the late C. D. Robinson, who was a clothing merchant for several years at Pawnee City, and several crops of posts have been cut from it. Last winter Mr. Etter cut three car loads of posts from it, and he will cut several more loads from the trees left standing. It is understood, however, that he plans to break the section up and grub out the trees.

Much of the planting has been delayed owing to the wet weather, but with continued warm weather now, it will make much of its belated start. There is much complaint here of the Hessian fly, which has practically destroyed some of the winter wheat, and several of the fields have been listed to corn.

The scenario was written by Miss Marie McKee. Rev. Irvin Inglis was manager and director. A platform was constructed at the foot of a natural auditorium and strong search lights were turned on the stage.

Beatrice in Record Lists

Prepare Yourself for Your Father's Shoes

Many a young man who thinks of taking up the trail to wealth where father leaves off is reckoning without father's sturdy health. The second generation often lacks the hardiness of the first, but the second generation has an advantage and that is chiropractic.

Adjusting restores the bodily machine to nervous balance—with every organ receiving its full degree of nervous energy. Spinal nerves must have freedom from pressure at their point of exist between joints of the backbone, and adjusting is the only way known to insure this freedom.

There has never been a time within memory of the present generation—or for that matter, as long as there has been a concentrated effort towards organized athletics in Nebraska, when teams from Beatrice were not up in the running. A glance in retrospect will prove that. The first state track meet ever held back in 1903 found Beatrice competing. And the athletes from the city on the Blue withdrew with second honors.

In football, Beatrice high school has always put a team in the field which every opposing school considered one of its big assignments to beat. Last year the machine was built around Pid Purdy, now playing professional baseball with the Lincoln state league, but he was declared ineligible before the season was well advanced and as a result the team did not make its usual showing. In 1919 Beatrice and Lincoln tied for state championship honors.

Beatrice has won the state basketball honors twice, once in 1911 and again in 1916 when eighty-eight teams were in the field and there was but one classification.

Just recently Beatrice stepped out ahead of other Nebraska school and put every boy student in the junior and senior high schools thru the tests prescribed by the army at its training camps. How the Beatrice boys check up against boys from other parts of the country will soon be known when the army officials compile the different results.

This was an unusually big job and W. L. (Bish) Hughes, athletic director, put it over in an efficient manner. Hughes recently resigned in order to take some advanced college work and his successor has not yet been appointed.

Beatrice has entered a club in the two state leagues which have been organized and if it is ever necessary to organize another, Beatrice would probably be one of the first cities suggested as a probable entrant. Some of the best athletes Nebraska university ever had enrolled on its books came from Beatrice. Among the more recent are Bill Day, captain of the 1920 Husker football team and now a member of the coaching staff; Ed Smith, who tied Jackson V. Scholz's record of 9:08 in the 100-yard dash and broke the 220-yard dash record in the Missouri Valley conference last year; Keith Lloyd, and Doug Myers.

Interscholastic sports do not hold the entire spotlight in Beatrice. One of the sportiest eighteen-hole golf courses in the state is located there.

The Blue river forms natural boating, fishing and bathing facilities. Taken by and large there isn't a city in Nebraska which has any higher ranking as an all-around sportsman, than Beatrice.

PRICELESS RECORDS DESTROYED

LA POINTE, Wis., May 31.—Priceless historical records were destroyed when flames swept historic Treaty hall, the most famous building on Madeline island recently. The structure, built in 1836 by the American Fur company, was the scene of the signature of the famous treaty negotiated by United States commissioners with Chief Hole-in-the-Sky, head of the La Pointe Indian tribes. Some of the most important records in point of historical value, it is said, were recently removed by Father Charron of Ashland, who is preparing a history of the Chequamegon bay region. Many others, however, including several documents stored in the vault of the Minnesota branch D. A. R. were lost.

DOING BIG JOB OF HUMAN RECLAMATION

R. J. Horsefield, Assistant Director of Veterans' Bureau, Talks at Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

R. J. Horsefield, assistant director of the United States Veterans' bureau with headquarters at St. Louis, discussed the activities of the federal government in caring for its disabled soldiers, victims of the world war, in the main dining room of the chamber of commerce, Thursday afternoon.

He said that the war left 400,000 disabled men and the government has taken unusual steps to help them physically and vocationally that they may be returned to production if possible. It is essential that this be done and Uncle Sam did not hesitate to act, tho the expense of such training is tremendous. Mr. Horsefield felt that he was able to show that such training has already paid big dividends in giving the cripples and those otherwise disabled an opportunity to lead happy and useful lives.

The government is caring for 100,000 disabled men. They are given instruction in the regular colleges and universities and in the standard trade schools. When fit, they are found jobs with responsible individuals firms and corporations. The bureau adds its supervision to that of the schools themselves, thereby insuring careful inspection of the progress made by the government wards. Already 1,000,000 claims have been filed with the bureau. Those who have been placed have with few exceptions made good. Mr. Horsefield combatted the criticisms that have been made from some quarters as to human reclamation work that the federal government. He gave figures to show that such criticism was not justified by the results.

TO BE TRIED ON RAPE CHARGE

Frank Dufack Said to Have Attacked Feeble Minded Girl.

Frank Dufack, fifty-nine years old, was bound over to district court Thursday by Justice of Peace W. A. Hawes. Dufack is charged with rape. He was released on $500 bond with Fred E. Bodie as surety. The complaint against the defendant charges that on May 22 Doris Wells was the victim of the assault. The complaint states that Miss Wells is feeble-minded and that the defendant knew that she was in this condition. Dufack stood mute when arraigned on May 22. He was fined $100 and costs in police court recently when he pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. He was arrested by police.

CITY PLANS TO PAY DEBTS.

MADISON, Wis., May 31.—The city of Milwaukee, made famous by beer, is going after a more respectable claim to fame. A two-part plan to retire all of the city's bonds, and set aside permanent funds that will make the municipality the owner of more money than it can spend in a few decades, has just gone into effect. Thomas Duncan, socialist member of the assembly and former secretary to Daniel Hoan, socialist mayor of Milwaukee, is the author of the "amortization fund" bill for Milwaukee, which has been passed by the legislature and signed by Governor Blaine.

Both parts of the scheme go into effect January 1, 1924.

Mr Hargrave saw service in France and chose for his subject his experience on the front and the connection of the memorial service with the heroic dead.

and the purposes and ideals of the university. He said in part:

"We planted the ivy today not only in the hope that it would create a better class spirit, but also in the hope that it will create a greater university spirit. The student body wishes to pause for a day in which to do honor to not only the departing senior class but also to the incoming senior class. Today the students pause to do honor to the new members of the Innocents and Mortarboards, the two senior honorary societies. To be selected as a member of either is one of the greatest honors than can befall the university man or woman in his whole university life.

"The University of Nebraska is the only institution for higher education in the whole state which has as its first and only thought, the training of every man and woman in Nebraska. It has no other motive in view. It welcomes us, whether we are radical or conservative, an aristocrat or a democrat.

"Let us resolve upon this Ivy day that we will not only have greater class spirit and greater university spirit but also that we will endeavor to serve our community and do honor to our alma mater, which welcomes every one of us from the whole, wide state, and which in this great commercial age holds high the value of knowledge to the community and the state."

A ballet, presented by a group of university girls, represented the story of a lady and the man in the moon. Miss Glee Gardner took the part of the lady and Miss Beulah Grabill was the man in the moon. There were four groups representing flowers. The daffodils were Willa Maud Powell, Betty Lentz, Neva Jones, Marie Snavely, Leona Chapman, Louise Bransted, Inez Reese, Catherine Smith, Anna Hines. In the group of Yewheads were Blanch Gramlich, Margaret Toole, Irene Barquist, Lois Shepherd and Esther Swanson. The bluebells were Lois Pederson, Pearl Safford, Jesse Haiett and Florence Sturdevant. The roses were Joe Westgate, Allegra Westgate, Marjorie Bell, Lillian Lewis and Marjorie Haley. In a group representing the clouds were Bernice Balance, Dorothy Dougan, Ruth Ellsworth and Dorothy Taylor.

A song, "Fair Nebraska," sung by all the students, closed the ceremony.

The new members of Mortarboard will be masqued at the city campus Thursday afternoon and members of Innocents for next year will be tapped. The annual all-university sing will be a feature of the afternoon's program also.

SMITH TRIES THE DRY LAW

easily be the supreme hour in our state's history and which may even decide the fate of our great republic."

The opposing factions marched about the hall, drys wearing badges reading, "For law, against repeal" and the wets retaliating with "For law; for repeal."

Huge Signs of Wets.

A flurry of excitement ran thru the chamber when a wet strolled in carrying a huge sign on which was printed:

"The anti saloon league comes down preaching that drinking is sinful:

"I'll wager the rascals a crown they always preach best with a skin full."

The wet and his banner, however, were immediately banished.

A telegram from a member of the family of Dr. Wesley Wait, to whom President Harding addressed a letter opposing the repealer was received by Assemblyman Cuvilher, author of the repealer. It was signed by Franklin Adams, who stated Wait is a mighty poor specimen of the Wait family for opposing the repealer.

The telegram stated Wait's action violated the ideals of liberty for which his forefathers fought in the American revolution.

persons intending to practice dentistr

William H. Anderson, superintendent of the state Anti-Saloon League confined himself to two brief sentences, protesting "formerly in behalf of four thousand to five thousand churches in New York state.

Colonel William Hayward, district attorney, pleaded that repeal of the state law would embarrass the federal government in enforcement activities.

Wets and drys descended upon the state capitol in such great numbers that the hearing was held in the legislative chamber.

Behind the decision, which is expected to be made by Smith before the end of the week, lies a paramount question of national politics. President Harding has said if the governor signs the repealer it would seriously menace enforcement of prohibition in New York state — happy hunting ground of rum-runners and the nations greatest mart for bootleg booze.

Politicians believe that if Smith should sign the repealer and wipe the Mullan-Gage enforcement act from the statutes, it would pledge the democratic party to a wet program. Even the conservatives in the party admit that such action would split the national democratic organization.

Smith is backed by Tammany hall, a strong wet element. His friends are wets and he always has been considered an opponent of the present Volstead act. But extreme pressure has been brought against him from national democratic leaders, it is asserted. He is being prominently mentioned as a presidential prospect and the leaders do not want him to split the party on the issue.

CLARA CHARGES KIDNAPING

Hammer Murderess Declares She Can Prove That She Did Not Escape From Jail.

HOUSTON, Tex., May 31.—Clara Phillips, "hammer murderess", was speeding across Texas today enroute to San Quentin penitentiary, praying that District Attorney Woolwine of Los Angeles would hear her startling story.

"I don't want a new trial," the tiger woman told friends and relatives when she arrived here last night from New Orleans, "I don't need one. All I want is for Mr. Woolwine to grant me a hearing and listen to my story.

"I did not escape from the Los Angeles county jail—I was kidnaped" the slayer of Alberta Meadows protested. "I can prove to the entire satisfaction of Mr. Woolwine that I was kidnaped."

Jesse Carson, who was arrested with Mrs. Phillips in Honduras, scaled the walls of the Los Angeles jail and sayed the bars of her cell, Mrs. Phillips claimed. Carson pressed a revolver to her breast and demanded that she leave with him, Mrs. Phillips said.

"It is the only way to right and injustice," Carson told her, according to the "tiger woman's" recital to her mother-in-law, brother and stepfather who met her aboard the train here.

BULLET STOPS CRIMINAL

Leo Rogers, Canadian Badman, Killed After Slaying Two Police Officers.

NORTH BAY, Ont., May 31.—A rifle bullet thru the heart ended the career of Leo Rogers, called Canada's most desperate criminal, who fled into the wilds after killing two police officers and wounding a third.

Rogers fell dead yesterday, shot at long range by a member of a sheriff's posse just as he was about to shove off in a boat on Lake Nipissing. He was attempting to return the fire as he died.

Exactly a fortnight had elapsed since Rogers dashed from the court room here, where he was to have been tried for carrying firearms. Constable Lefevre was killed by the convict in the pursuit that followed, and Constable McGovern wounded. Wednesday morning a posse surrounded a house in which Rogers was hiding, but he escaped after killing Sergeant Urquhart. Later, on the lake shore, the posse caught up with Rogers and of a hail of bullets, one proved fatal.

UP FROM THE DEATH CELL

The Story of a Man Who Made Good

BY JOHN W KANE

EX-CONVICT NO. 1666.

(Copyright, 1923, in the United States, Canada, Great Britian and South America, by the North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT.

The warden picked up some papers on the table in front of him.

"I'll tell you briefly what these letters are about—and then you'll have to write them yourself. The truth of the matter is, I'm putting off on to you a couple of jobs here that I can't do as well as I'd like, and the other is merely an ordinary business matter that must be gotten away at once."

Then he began a concise explanation about certain family affairs, particularly about three grown sons, two of whom were married.

"I don't want them to get to hankerin' for jobs like these around here", said he. "In the first place, this prison administration isn't going to be any family affair. Moreover, we're taking hold of a tract of land down here some miles, and I want the boys to work that land and develop it. Now if you can cite them any advantages as to that, as against the total lack of opportunities and advantages in this work for them, get busy and do so. Go into detail if necessary, only give them something that will make 'em think if possible."

I knew, as a matter of fact, that he could not have given me anything that I could do better.

"This other letter here, which mother and I would like to have you answer"—he referred to his wife—"is one to some friends of ours. They have recently lost a child. Can you write a letter of sympathy, the kind we want?"

"I think I can; I'm sure I can," I answered. "But just one question, please: Have you and Mrs. S. ever lost a child?"

"Yes; why do you ask?"

"That knowledge will help me to write the letter as it should be written," I answered.

A Snarl to Unravel.

"And this other"—he unfolded a sheet that showed a land company's letter head—"is in reference to a tract of land that has timber, building stone and, perhaps, coal on it. This company wants to buy it from another company with which I have been connected in the past. You'll see what they say; that is, particularly what my former organization has to say. A part of that land has been under lease, and a part of that lease has been forfeited. Then on one side of the tract there is a question of rights involved because of some mining claims that were held by others prior to possession by the outfit I was interested with. In the event of an action at law one of the main questions would be as to whether or not too long a time had elapsed for the former claim-owners to come back and set up any rights in the matter. You'll see for yourself what they say. If you want any further particulars, just phone to me. I'll be upstairs."

With those explanations the new warden left me and went back to the upper part of the administration building, where the warden's family always lived.

Something told me that he had tried to give me a complicated piece of work in that mining-claim-land letter. And while I trust that I was not unduly confident—not to the extent of conceit, I hope—still a careful perusal of the two communications, in additions to what he had said, told me that I could do that letter also exactly as it should be.

The letter to the sons and that to the friends were written first. A careful reading of them by me called for a rewriting of one paragraph, which—because of the location of that paragraph—necessitated the writing of a whole page. I was not one who would do a botchy piece of work. I remembered what the warden had said about the master mechanic, and I had some knowledge of the kind of work he was in the habit of doing.

I am Stumped.

Right in the middle of that business letter I came to a place where reference to the statute of limitations was necessary. I knew the nature of the law but was not sure of the time in which action would be barred. And how was I to get around it? No getting around it would not be a commendable piece of work. But where I was, out in the warden's office, and the work that I needed was in the library inside I knew the phone call for the cellhouse in which the library was located, but how about sending an order for the book. Would the cellhouse custodian act upon my request? That was something new; in all the years of the former administration no book except some kind of fiction had ever been sent out to the warden's house. Ought I to call the warden first, and then send for the book? I wanted those three letters complete before he saw them. I had been put to work in his office, and efficiency on my part required that I should be able not only do the work properly, but to get thru with all details without troubling him.

I walked to where they called the "inside," and punched the button for that cellhouse.

"No. 2," came the custodian's answer, just as I had heard him answer so many times when I was under the death sentence in that house.

"Say, Mr. H," said I, "will you go to the library and get a volume entitled Morrison's 'Mining Rights' and send it out to the warden's office?"

"Is that you, Jack?" he inquired.

"Yes, sir—I'm working here for him."

"You bet I'll send it," he answered "You always were a lucky dog."

"The Letters Are Ready."

"Part of the time," I sent back, glad to know that at least one officer was quick to adapt himself to the new order of things. Under the former administration it would have taken a mile of red tape and necessary orders from both the heads to get a book out of the library upon the personal request of an inmate.

The volume came down in a few minutes. The turnkey, who was also a hold-over from the old regime, knocked upon the private office door; and when I bade him enter, he came in with the book in his hand.

"Is the warden here, Jack?" he answered.

"Not just now, Mr. S," I answered, "he's upstairs."

"Well, here's a book they sent down," said he. "Do you know whether he wanted it left here?"

"Yes, right here, Mr. S." I rose and took the volume. "And thank you very much."

The turnkey did not answer. In all the years that he had been there it was, I am sure, the first time that he had been thanked for delivering something to that office. The old warden himself did not believe in special courtesy to a guard except upon occasions, and no other person had ever received things there.

Ten minutes later I was ready for submitting the letters to "the boss," and within about thirty minutes more he entered.

"How are you making out?" he inquired.

"The letters are ready," I told him.

He read them all thru. That to the sons he read twice.

"Say, Kane," he looked over his glasses at me to say, "you're by this like the fellow was in mimicking a Dutchman: He could do it so well that everybody agreed that he did it better than the Dutchman himself could. A person would think that you're writing to your own sons. How do you do that, anyway?"

Fiction Helps in Task.

"It's not so easy to explain as it might be, as glad as I am that you like the work," I answered. "Perhaps you know that I have read and thought and felt a great deal. In doing creative work—that is, fiction—it becomes necessary for one actually to be in feelings a father, brother, husband or wife, friend or sweetheart, or in the words of Lord Bacon 'a wild beast or a god.' So, you see, as I wrote that I merely put myself in your shoes and then I applied such knowledge and skill as I might perhaps have."

He took the letter of sympathy next. "The same principle applies to this, I see," he remarked.

"Exactly," I agreed.

"Now wait a minute"—and he took up the business letter again. "There are parts of this one that I want to study a bit."

I waited.

"Are you a lawyer?" he asked, refolding the letter.

"Oh, no, but I had a couple years' study of the law."

"Where?"

"Right in there." I motioned toward the inside.

He puffed silently upon his cigar for a moment; then:

"I've heard quite a bit about you, Kane. I was under the impression that some people had a kind of exaggerated view as to your capabilities, but maybe they didn't have, after all."

"I'm glad to hear you say that, warden," I told him, as I began to fold the sheets and seal the envelopes. And then, after I had begun entering the names of all the prisoners in a small ledger for his private use, he passed out of the room and left me alone.

I have a particular reason for telling the reader about my first day in the warden's private office. And here is a thought that I wish to leave with the reader—an inquiring thought: What if I had been called to the private office of the head of a state institution thirteen years before and handed those three letters to answer? I would have been as much at sea as I would be now if suddenly placed in charge of a steel manufacturing plant. But determination, study and hard work, even behind the walls where I had been shut up to die, produced in me an efficiency that made the all-round-business-man warden smile with satisfaction.

GLOUCESTER CITY, N. NIGHTIES IN THE ARMY.

LONDON.—(By Mail)—Crepe-de-chine nighties are not a proper stock in trade for an army and navy canteens' board according to Lord Wolmer who has just appeared before the board in protest against the shimmering sleeping garments. Lord Wolmer says the canteens' board has lots of crepe-de-chine nighties in stock and he has some pictures of display windows with the offending articles in view. No one seems able to explain the connection between filmy sleeping things and the British Tommy Atkins.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, May 31.—Buying by recent sellers caused grain prices to close higher on the Chicago board of trade today.

After undergoing several rallies, wheat strengthened on receipt of the government weekly crop report which showed some damage done to the winter wheat crop in various sections of the southwest, the Ohio valley, Indiana and Illinois. The Hessian fly and chinch bug has caused considerable damage in Kansas and Nebraska, while the Oklahoma crop suffered from recent hail storms.

Holders of May contracts were heavy buyers of corn. Stocks were light and many contracts were declared to be still open. Corn planting was progressing favorably.

Oats remained strong with unfavorable crop reports.

Provisions advanced.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, May 31—Winnipeg broke early yesterday but rallied later, with the close practically 1-8@1-4 cent higher for wheat except for October which was 1-8 cent lower. Oats were 7-8@1 higher. Reports on weather from western Canada were mostly favorable, good rains and higher temperatures being beneficial to the crop. New buying must be injected into that market if advances are to be sustained. The Canadian visible is under 48,000,000 bushels, however, out of which it is figured Canadian mills will require around 20,000,000 bushels. Reserves on farms are only 8,-000,000 to 10,000,000.

The Winnipeg market is suffering from government interference with trading the same in the United States. Big buyers are making few commitments in the October delivery.

According to the Winnipeg Free Press, millions of grasshoppers menace the growing crop in the southwestern district of the province os Assiniboia. More damage has been done already this year than was suffered in the whole of last season according to an official estimate.—Lamson.

Grain Market Opinions.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.: The market does not appear to have yet seen its low point.

Stein Alstryn: The market is in no position to withstand any great amount of selling.

Harris Winthrop: Lack of outside interest was the outstanding feature in all pits.

Clement Curtis & Co.: Local sentiment remains bearish.

Hulburd Warren & Co.: Until consumption overtakes supply and increased speculative power can be induced to come into the market a heavy situation will continue.

Thomson McKinnon: A radical change in actual situation is necessary to make crop uncertainties influential in price making.

Riordan Martin & Co.: The market is due for a good advance.

Uhlman Grain Co.: The trade is waking up to the real unfortunate situation.

Logan & Bryan: Any further selling will be easily overdone.—Lamson.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, May 31.—It is the general belief of leaders here that the grains markets are fully liquidated and in a position to respond generously to helpful influences. It was noticed in Tuesday's break below 113 for July that stop-loss orders such as have been met on recent declines failed to come out. Speculative interest however, in both the United States and Canada is suffering from possible legislative movements that restrict interest. In both countries the result has been lower prices. The belief exists in this country that the government will eventually come forward with some ruling that will result in soaring markets.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Despite the extreme dullness prevailing most of the session, today's market was more remarkable for the number of strong spots which cropped out than for any special selling. With the holiday out of the way, stocks showed some disposition to break away from the lethargy which characterized Tuesday's dealings. But aggressiveness in the morning hours on the side of the advance in a few industrials like Studebaker, Baldwin, Corn Products, California Petroleum and Mack Trucks was short-lived. In the afternoon the general list held forth little attraction to the speculative elements. The market closed irregular.

POULTRY 432-46 South Eleventh BUTTER, EGGS

Let Us Help You Adjust Your Liberty Bonds.

A few hundred thousand bond buyers in 1913 became an army of a good many millions strong by the close of 1918. Millions of men and women who had never saved money, never had a savings account, never bought a share of building and loan—in fact, spent all their income as fast as they received it, and sometimes faster—become owners of United States Liberty Bonds as the result of the several "drives" instituted to sell the bonds.

A great many of these new bond buyers knew very little about investment securities of any kind. They did not understand the Liberty Bonds: and many who bought under more or less compulsion of their neighbors, got rid of their Liberty Bonds at the first opportunity—usually in a trade for "Blue Sky" stock or a swap for high-priced clothing. Many others locked theirs up in a Safe Deposit Box and resolved to not cut any of the coupons for several years at least.

"Considerably more than $50,000,000 worth of the United States Victory Bonds which were called in by the Government last December," says an editorial in the Christian Science Monitor, "and upon which interest ceased at that time have not been presented for redemption.. This discloses a strange state of affairs, though in a sense it is not one at which great wonder need be felt.. It is certain that a fair proportion of those who, hold these bonds . . . are poor . . . and their failure to turn in the bonds simply goes to show how little they know of financial matters and how incapable . . . they are of managing their own savings in the least degree efficiently . . .

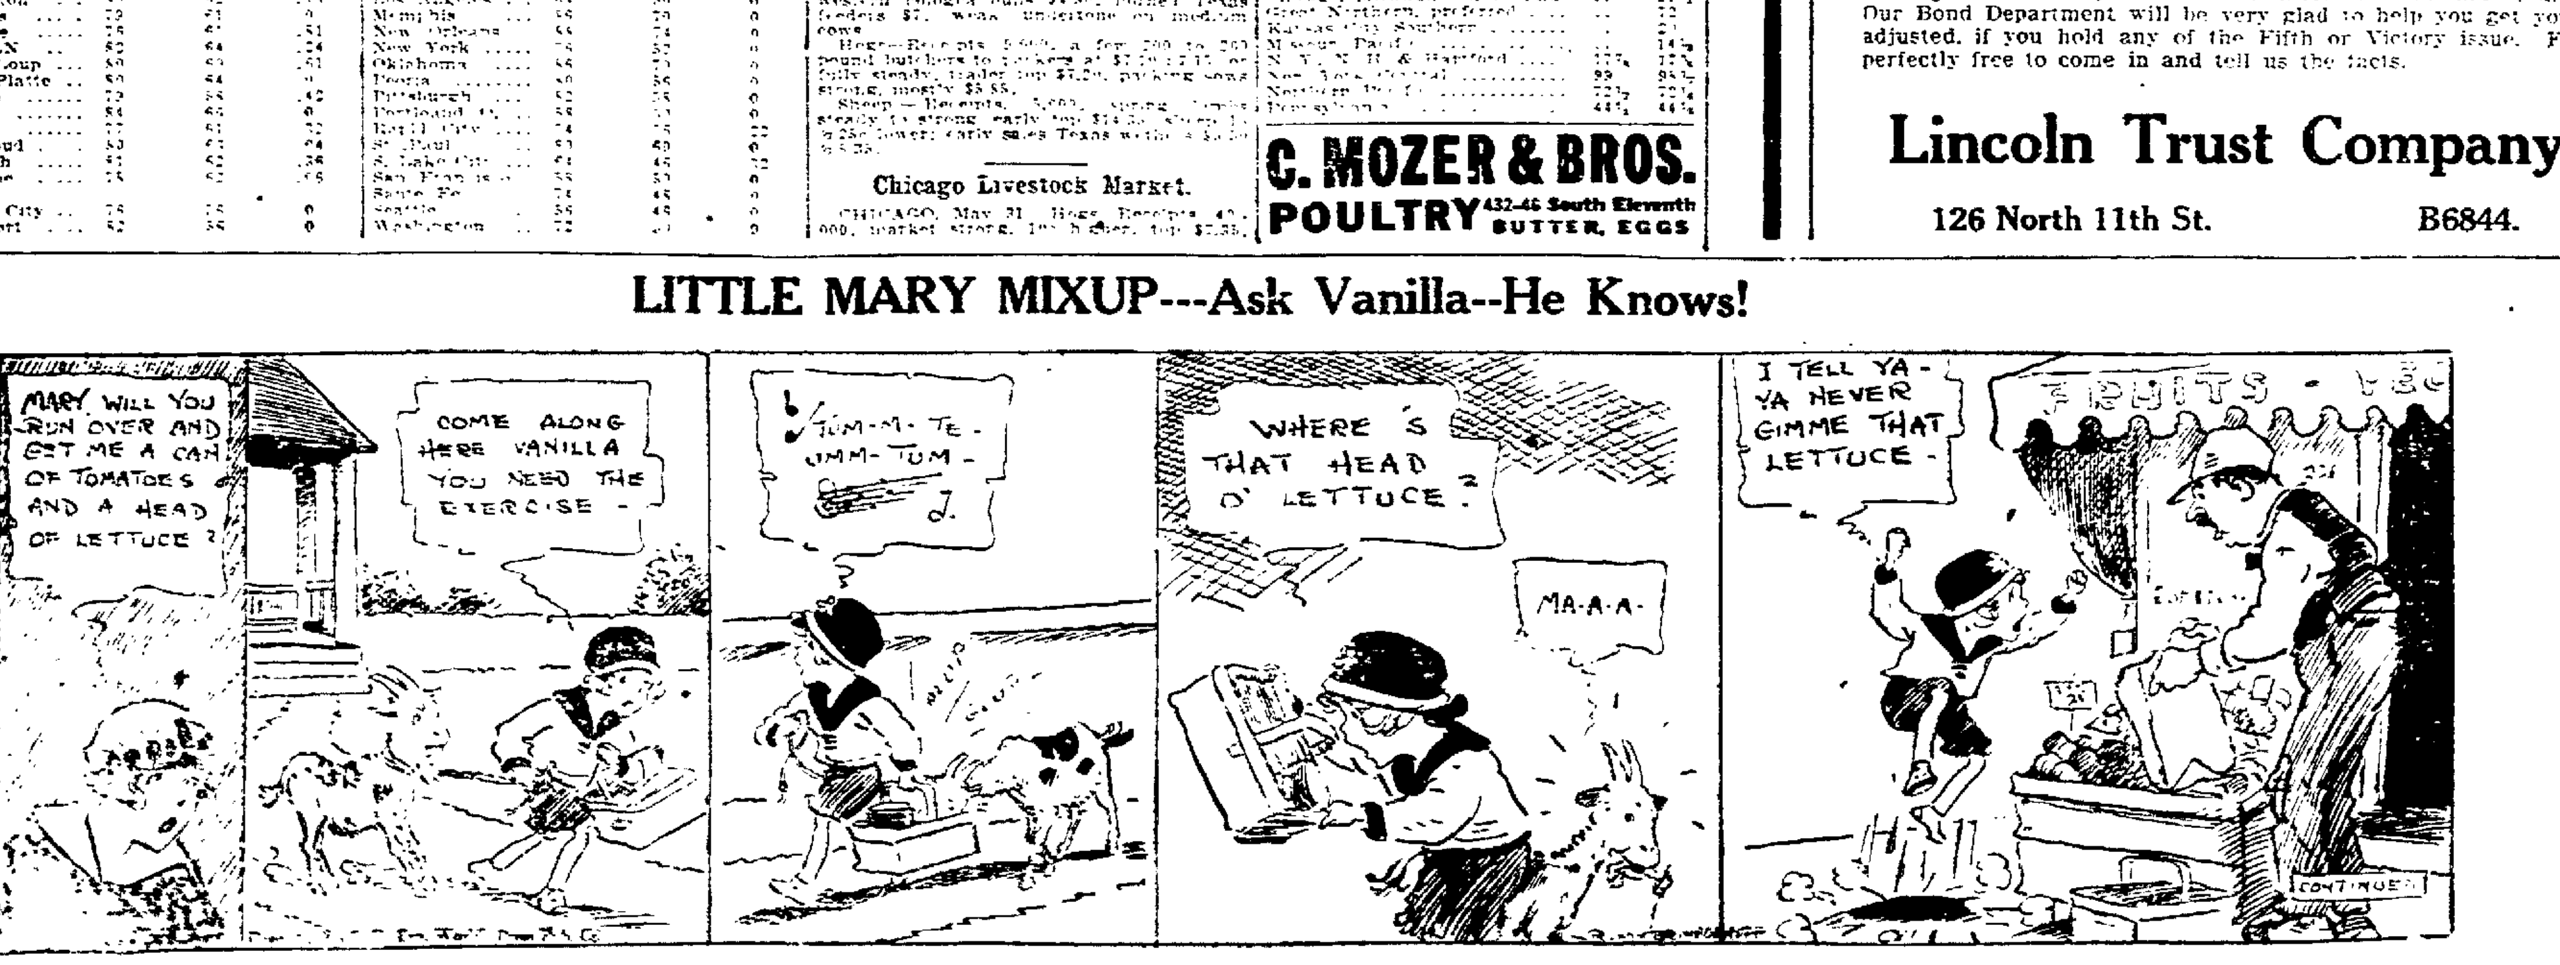

" . . . during a few months hundreds of thousands of dollars in interest have been deliberately sacrificed through carelessness or ignorance, and it would be difficult to know what more the United States Government could do than it has done to make it clear to all bondholders that these bonds had reached their maturity."

Several times Lincoln Trust Company has called attention to this loss of interest sustained by those holding their Victory Bonds long after interest has ceased. Our Bond Department will be very glad to help you get yours adjusted, if you hold any of the Fifth or Victory issue. Feel perfectly free to come in and tell us the facts.

SIDE TALKS

(By Ruth Cameron.)

Getting in Your Own Way.

Do you get in your own way?

Some people do just that. They are so eager to get something they want that they get in their own way and stumble over themselves and then fail to get it.

Take sleep, for instance. There is nothing more fatal to getting sleep than wanting it too much and trying too hard to get it. Nothing will keep anyone awake more unfailingly than saying to oneself: "I must get to sleep. If I don't I never shall be able to do my work tomorrow. I wonder what time it is now." (Business of consulting radium wrist watch, or, worse still, snapping on a light and looking at clock.) "Oh, dear, here it is almost half-past twelve! I must get to sleep before the clock strikes one."

To Be Popular.

Or, again, take the matter of pleasing other people. If you try too hard to please you are almost sure to defeat your own end. It is all right to want to please, to want (like all human beings) to be popular. It is even better, for your purposes, to be willing to make some sacrifice for the sake of pleasing, to make some definite study of what helps to make friends and what keeps friends away. But if you get your heart too much set on being popular, if you strain too hard, the result of the strain will show itself in your manner—and won't be natural, you won't be relaxed, you won't be yourself, and you will find it hard to please.

THE CROSSING COP

To Write.

A writer friend of mine, while he knows that infinite capacity for taking pains is the prices of success, says that you must also beware of trying too hard in writing. It seems hard to reconcile those two statements and yet he says that if he is too anxious to make a story a success, too hard pushed by the need of succeeding with any particular story, he will try too hard and the story is apt to be a failure.

I have always found it amusing to read the advertisements of a certain magazine which declared that the ten best story writers had each been engaged to write the best story they were capable of for the magazine. As if any author could contract to write the best story he was capable of at any time! As if the mere thought that he had to do that wouldn't make him try too hard and get in his own way and fall down.

To Be a Nurse.

There is another aspect of this trying too hard. If you try too hard to do one thing right and take too much out of yourself in the effort, you make yourself less capable of accomplishing the next thing you have to do. Take a familiar example, the mother with a sick child. She wants to do just the right thing for it and she wakes up every few minutes all night and looks to see if it is properly covered, and opens the window and closes it, and hovers over the child and wears herself out, fearing she has not done the right thing. Consequently, next night she is less able than she was the night before to make wise decisions and give the child the best possible care.

Do the best you can at anything. Don't overdo it. And don't worry about the result. That's the way to keep out of your own way.

MEN AND THINGS

The sober spectacles of the workaday world are worn too many hours by most of us. We need to do a lot of playing. If it be in the form of physical exercise it is all the better, but if it can be nothing else it ought to be in the realm of the mental. It is this urgent need that makes books popular and widely read. If we are not afflicted with a mind that is prosaically literal we can sit in our easy chair and go adventuring into strange lands, enjoy at second hand thrills that would never otherwise come into our lives, laugh and learn. A man may be as old as his arteries, as we have long been taught, but my theory is that the perpetuation of his youth depends upon his mental stimulants, those things that mould viewpoint and keep him in touch with the springs of life.

Without any definite design of being perverse, I find it difficult to finish reading most of these so-called best sellers, and least of all those that the literary critics pick out as the noteworthy novels of the year. Is the literary critic coming to be like the musical critic, weighing everything in a set of scales where technique and form are more important than soul and lilt? It seems that way.

The short ballot will not appeal to those who are afraid to trust public officials. One of the curious things about democracy is that it has moulded its idea of government upon the basic notion that the men selected to administer its various departments are neither wholly honest nor wholly competent. We still elect our public treasurers and then, having thus placed our stamp of approval upon them as honest men, we proceed to bond them so that we may not lose anything thru their dishonesty—and then pay for the bond ourselves.

Apparently the Airedale dog is growing in popularity. I see more of them running about and I read more about them than about any other dog. If I were inclined to worry there is another thing I should lift up my hands to deplore. The combination of colors in the Airedale's coat is enough to shock even the most distraught eye, and any man who ran about with whiskers long and of varying lengths would be denounced as unkempt. Is this another sign of a tendency towards bolshevism?

It is rather difficult to understand Senator LaFollette. Ten years ago, at his insistence and for what seemed to be sound reasons, we undertook the valuation of the railroad systems of the country. As we proposed to make rates that would return a reasonable interest on the investment, it was quite logical that we find out first what the actual investment is. The first report made public shows that the Great Northern has a greater investment value than it has stock and other securities outstanding. This was not the situation as we thought it was and as LaFollette said it was. Now the senator is wildly denouncing the valuators and the valuation, altho he does not know any more about whether it is right or wrong than you or I do.

That is one of the reasons why politics weary so many persons. The politicians must find an issue, and as they discovered that the people regard the man who denounces something as a leader they denounce willingly and at all hours. The senator has not waited to check up on the valuation to ascertain if it is correct or not. It does not support his theory or preconception, and, therefore, it is wrong. That is one reason why we do not get very far with the solution of many of our political problems.

The task of bringing order out of chaos in the relations between France and Germany seems all the larger after we have heard a man like Col. Stone of the high commission explain what it is all about. Germany cannot pay the reparations because she must first earn the money to do it with, having sent most of her gold out of the country. France dare not let Germany go to work to earn the money because this would mean she would get strong again and be able to whip the French and thus avoid payment. Talk of vicious circles!

The remarkable growth in the number and attendance at the high schools of the state, as indicated in a recent survey, is a very complete answer to the charge that our school system is ineffective, and it goes far to show why it is expensive. The test of the value of an educational system, it would seem, is whether it can hold restless, eager spirits within the walls of the schoolhouses, with the world beckoning from the outside. Our big problem in the past has been to hold pupils in the grades and in the high schools. We haven't solved it yet, but we are making headway, as this survey shows.

ABE MARTIN

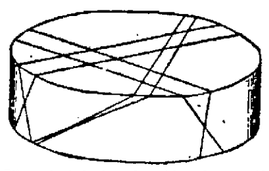

Th' cost o' livin' has gone up 57 per cent, but that don't make it anywhere near what it's worth. Whoever wrote th' latest book on eitquette fergot t' tell us how t' act when we're introduced t' somebuddy that says, "Well, well, I'm glad t' meet you. I used t' know your wife."

BRAIN TESTS

(By Sam Loyd.)

Fifteen Minutes to Answer This.

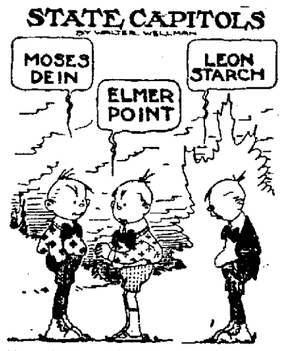

The sketch is of a big cheese that has been dissected by six straight cuts of a knife. It requires considerable imagination to see into the middle of the cheese and count all the big and little pieces into which it has been divided by six cuts. At the present price of the commodity we will not ask our puzzlers to experiment with th ereal article, but just to concentrate upon the sketch and build up an imaginative total of the pieces seen and unseen. How many places can you count?

Answer to Yesterday's.

Face minus Ace plus Branch minus B plus Eel minus Heel plus E equals France.
